"An Evening with R. Buckminster Fuller" will be presented Sunday, January 25, at 7 p.m. in the Concert Hall of the Von Braun Civic Center by the UAH Symposium and Lecture Series.

Viewed by many as the "Leonardo da Vinci of our age," Fuller is a poet, scientist, philosopher, systems designer and inventor. According to his followers, he has a "rare ability for viewing complex problems systematically in an era when the accelerative thrust of technology has made specialization the order of the day."

Among Fuller's inventions and concepts are the four-D Dymaxion House, the Dymaxion Car and probably best known, the geodesic dome. Another of his innovations is the "World Game," a sophisticated computer model he developed while at Southern Illinois University which allows technologists of various disciplines to test their projected planetary alternatives and evaluate the results.

At the age of eighty, Dr. Fuller, (who prefers to be called "Bucky,") is still lecturing widely to audiences around the world in what has been described as a "lucid, fascinating and often challenging style."

Sunday's lecture is free to all members of the UAH community with identification cards and will be $2 to the general public. Tickets are available at the Civic Center box office and its outlets.

A reception will follow the lecture in the Green Room off the corridor on the right side of the Concert Hall. All UAH faculty, staff and students are welcome to attend.

The Alabama Credit Union Board of Directors has approved the payment of quarterly dividends in 1976 and the first of these will be credited to members' shares on March 31. Deposits made on or before the tenth of the month will earn a dividend for the month.
