Three years later, UAH remembers those lost

BY HILARY SHELTON, NEWS EDITOR

Three years later, UAH remembers those lost in the Amy Bishop shooting. Dr. Gopi K. Podila, Dr. Maria Ragland Davis and Dr. Andra D. Johnson all served as advisors for the Minority Graduate Student Association, which helped LSAMP scholars for almost 20 years. The university has established two scholarship funds in memory of the three victims. The Department of Biomedical Sciences Memorial Scholarship Fund provides scholarships to Biology and Nursing majors in honor of Johnson and Davis. The Gopi Podila Memorial Scholarship is awarded to Biology majors via faculty nominations. The scholarship is funded by the family of Podila and by the Partnership for Bioinformatics Research. That scholarship funds are a way to remember the dedication those three scholars witnessed/researchers showed toward their students.

According to AL.com, Bishop's attorneys for emails and records from a specific group of people regarding the university's investigation into the shooting. For this information, Bishop requested at a hearing that UAH had previously declared during the Feb. 11 hearing that UAH must not be present because of ‘Bishop, "Security," or "Police," Bishop himself wrote in an email to Karbhari.

The UAHuntsville men’s basketball team swept their two previous weekends, and now sit alone atop the South Conference standings. They cruised to an eventual 86-70 victory. Campbell scored 20 points in the first half and ended up with a career-best 32 points for the night on 14-18 shooting.

Christian Brothers University and the University of North Alabama, the Chargers’ victories proved to be of enormous value as they now hold first place all by themselves and can control their own destiny as they enter the home stretch of conference play. If the Chargers are able to win out, they will secure their fourth consecutive regular-season conference championship, something that has never before been done in the NCAA.

Shakespeare returns to UAHuntsville

By Reggie Allen, Staff Writer

Shakespeare returns to UAHuntsville in conjunction with the UAH English Honor Society and UAHuntsville Literary Association. The American Shakespeare Center performed Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" as well as "The Duchess of Malfi," a non-Shakespearean tragedy for a crowd consisting of mostly high school and college students. Before each of the plays, attendants had the opportunity to attend a free lecture exposing key facts and background information for each of the featured plays.

"Shakespeare wasn't meant to be in school," Dr. Jeff Nelson of the Honor society said. "It was meant to be performed. The script was meant for the actors." He added true, so as the professionally trained cast made the lines that they own and created a high-flying and emotion-invoking performance.

Audience members were brought along for the ride as much of the cast members took the stage beyond the stages to the audience areas and directly involved question answering in scenes. "Back in Shakespeare's day, there wasn't any theatrical lighting," Glenn Moorhead, director and stage manager of the UAH production said. "And we strongly think that. Shakespeare actors would have interacted with the audience." The three plays were given a contemporary feel, exposing the often hidden and original script that Shakespeare wrote. He had his actor spill over his head, and some audience members famous lines "Call Me Maybe" and "I Want It That Way" and the play to create a more realistic feel.

PHILADELPHIA Pope Benedict XVI, 85, said that he will resign on Feb. 28, and would become the first pope since Benedict of the Roman Catholic Church to do so in nearly 600 years. Benedict announced his decision during a Vatican朝 mass Monday morning and said it was because of his age. Benedict called his choice "a moment of great importance for the life of the church." The new pope would be chosen by cardinals in a conclave among competing papal claims. He said he would work to make it a greater and more effective college for staging university events and serving as the university's playhouse. He also generally ignored it in all other cases.

UAHuntsville Chinese New Year Celebration
By Rachel Palazzo, Staff Writer
On Feb. 10 at 6:30 p.m. in the Building’s Chan Auditorium, members of the community all gathered to celebrate the Chinese New Year, the year of the snake.

The event offered an abundance of Chinese food and entertainment. UAHuntsville Chinese students, non-Chinese students and people from the community all gathered to celebrate the Chinese culture. The amount of attendees was in the hundreds, leaving only standing room in Chan Auditorium even after extra chairs were supplied to fill the seats. It was absolutely necessary.

The event started off with a check-in at the door where attendees were handed a key chain, "A Happy New Year" card and a raffle ticket. Guest then headed to the food supplied in a buffet style. The food was quite tasty and hard to get in and out of, but surprisingly there seemed to be enough for everyone. Most attendees, everyone piled into the auditorium where a show of all types of acts was organized. Announcers spoke in Chinese with an English translation, and the acts ranged from traditional Chinese instruments and dance, to an animated map of a Lunar New Year song.

"The performance was very creative and cultural," said Mr. Liu. Overall, the Chinese New Year celebration was quite extensive. It was a great opportunity to experience the culture and meet new people.

The Sober: The Bigger Issue
By Ivy Heartson, Staff Writer
Let's face it, I have to be doing a mass influx of general women and men. For example: Mrs. Johnson, "Oh women will break your heart." And "Men are sexy." I am sure you have heard both. However, I am not trying to downplay the importance of equality of such statements in another. It does not mean a woman cannot have a strong opinion, but does not mean to be treated as another. Nor is it the issue either. The same issue towards you. Hispanic, white, black, male, female, bi, and the list goes on.

I have noticed that it seems lies are just not good people. It does not have to do with gender or any other factor besides the person. You can not simply point fingers and make up excuses for someone's behavior or behavior. Toward you. No matter how, the person does not do it for you. Keep your heart and you will find someone who deserves you and they are the ones you want to be treated.

Punk Attack Pale Ale
is a Belgian strong pale ale from Brothers Baldwin Macleod brewery in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. It has an abv of 6.6% and firm orange color. This is one smooth beer. The beers are incredibly solid. You can taste more character from the malt, but they are too mild. Overall, it is a very sweet beer, which is a great characteristic to go along with such a high alcohol content. I loved it.

Hopsecutioner: Finally, we have an American India Pale ale by the new Terrengan Beer Company in Athens, Ga. This one has an abv of 6.2% and pours a dark orange color. Though this is a very dark beer, it is not thick. You could say it is a bit like a Guiness in that respect. The hops are what really pack this beer. It is really sweet but is best characterized by a smooth, milky bitterness that sticks with the flavor. The hops are prominent, but do not overpower the flavor. Overall, it is a fulfilling beer.
