*STUDENT MARSHAL

I salute and congratulate the graduates. Each has sacrificed in some measure leisure to learn. I believe this to be a pattern which, if continued, will bring delight and be greatly rewarding. On this particular occasion, however, I will twist this emphasis a little by quoting a sentence written by Francis Parkman over one hundred years ago: "For the student there is, in its season, no better place than the saddle, and no better companion than the rifle or the oar."

H. Clyde Reeves
Executive Vice President
For Huntsville Affairs,
University of Alabama
