UAH Campus Housing

By VIRGINIA LETSON
exponent staff writer

Recent additions to the UAH campus are the newly-built on-campus apartments for students. Questions a non-resident student have are:

What are they like? Are they for me?

In order to give students a clear picture of what to expect, the exponent has looked into those questions by interviewing some of the students living there as well as the management. The results were more positive than negative.

The most positive aspect is that, if anyone has trouble adjusting to his room or has any other problem in settling in, the management is friendly and cooperative and willing to help in the adjustment.

One student, Sun Fowler, commented, "The overall program is good, but there are a couple of places that need improvement. The questionnaire is too brief. The management is cooperative and willing, but I disagree with the policy of two people to a room. Differences in schedule, sickness and personal conflicts make the arrangement difficult in some circumstances.

The apartments are designed on the order of minidorms. Each apartment has three bedrooms which can sleep up to six people. There is a living room, a kitchen-dining area and a double bathroom. The apartment is furnished, including extra-long captain's beds, study desks and other standard furnishings. It is air-conditioned, carpeted and includes stove, refrigerator and Lovejoy blinds. Laundry-mats are scattered throughout the complex, and three student lounges are soon to be opened.

Everyone pays the same rent in these apartments (8325 including utilities). At the present time, all of the students do not have to share bedrooms as the apartments are not yet full.

Eventually, all bedrooms will be shared. Presently, the rooms are given on a first-come, first-served basis, and room sharing goes according to seniority. The price a student pays is the cost for one-half of a bedroom, according to Camille Selby, Director of Housing for UAH. Another student voiced a totally positive opinion. "The apartment complex is a totally new concept for UAH," said James Steele. "It promotes friendship and group interaction that isn't possible in the hustle of meeting people in class. There is more of a family atmosphere here. People find common interests.

It is the single most significant happening at UAH in ten years. Students who are interested should come and visit friends and see the opportunity for themselves.

There is also the savings of travel expenses if you live several miles from campus. It's less expensive than public apartments and it is easier to get acquainted and get involved in school activities, as well as the convenience of being close to everything.

Rules are the usual state and university laws, with the added requirement of paying fees at the beginning of each quarter. Alcohol isn't allowed, nor is any illegal substance. No pets are allowed. Everyone is expected to cooperate from midnight to 9 a.m. and during midterms and finals.

University Special Services

By CUNDY LAUE
exponent staff writer

Dr. Joy Harrilick, director of the Special Services program at UAH, explains who the federally-funded program will help.

"It's for college students who are already enrolled at UAH who are intelligent people...but have a poor prior education in at least one area." Students who, for instance, have a poor background in math or English can be provided with a tutor in these areas. Help is available for any remedial or 100-level course. Students must submit an application. The application will be reviewed, and the student's eligibility for the program is then determined.

Students having problems are encouraged to apply for help early. Along with the application, the student's tax return is needed.

The students eligible for the program are required to sign a contract stating that they will meet with their tutor for at least three hours a week.

Tutors are chosen very carefully on the basis of their grades and references. The tutors are paid according to their experience. Those with little experience are paid minimum wage.

Tutors fill out weekly reports which are monitored by the faculty members. The student's progress is checked and new goals are set each week.

"They (the students) get very good-quality, intensive help on a one-to-one basis," comments Dr. Harrilick.

A study skills course is also offered by the Special Services Department. Students are taught how to organize their time, use the library, outline and many other skills necessary for college survival.

The study skills course is taught over the period of one quarter. A limited number of spaces are still available for this quarter. Students interested need to apply in the Special Services building before Friday, September 17.

All services of the Special Services program are free to the eligible student.

The Special Services office is located behind Morton Hall in annex A.

Special arrangements can be made for blind or handicapped persons by calling the Special Services Office, 885-6008.
Student Services Director Welcomes Freshmen

I would like to welcome all the new students to UAH and welcome back those who have been on this great campus previously.

I am honored to be able to serve as Director of YOUR Student Services. I will do everything I possibly can to make sure that your money is spent in the most beneficial way for the students.

What is Student Services? It is a division of the Student Government Association of the University of Alabama in Huntsville. The services include: Student Health Insurance Program, Student Directory, Student Discount Program, Cultural Events Tickets, Used Textbook Exchange, The Source, and the Test File.

The Insurance policy is one endorsed by the SGA, designed to help ease unexpected medical costs for the college student. I urge you to take a close look at this policy and seriously consider taking advantage of it.

The Student Directory provides you with helpful information about UAH. This includes student phone numbers, departmental numbers and descriptions of many aspects of the campus.

The Student Discount program, we contact local businesses to obtain discounts. These are then put into a booklet to be distributed to the students. We also purchase season tickets from certain groups in town: Broadway Theatre League, Huntsville Community Chorus, Huntsville Chamber Music Guild, and others. These will be available to the students, free of charge, approximately one week before the date of the event.

The Used Textbook Exchange program is designed to help ease the costs of books. Students bring their books by the SGA office and price the books. When the book is sold, the student receives all the money made on that book. The SGA makes no money on this program, and this enables us to sell books at a lower cost than the Book Nook. Students can check the Used Textbook Exchange every quarter for books they may need for classes.

The Source is a number (865-6668) students can call to get up-to-date information about happenings at UAH.

The Test File is located in the library and contains past tests that professors have graciously provided for a guide to their styles.

All of these services are here for you to take advantage of free of charge. I urge you to participate in all of them.

If you have any questions concerning any of the services, feel free to come by the Student Services office - upstairs in the University Union Building, Room 207, or call 885-6428.

Student's views of the PLO

By LORIE GILL

How do you feel about Israel's justification in attacking Beirut, and the American intervention in the evacuation?

In an informal poll conducted at UAH on Sept. 7, 117 students offered extremely varied answers to this question.

The recent fighting in the Middle East has brought attention to the area of the world and the problems facing both factions in this war. The anger and fear expressed by the Israelis and PLO since the bombings began is reflected in the personal feelings of many of the students at UAH.

John Miller, a music major of Jewish descent, feels that "Israel was justified in its actions, and is perfectly capable of taking care of itself." Miller added, "The evacuation, assisted by the Americans, was well-handled."

Helen Graham, a sophomore nursing student, feels the actions taken by the Israelis were "possibly justified because they claimed the land was theirs." Graham is against American intervention, however, because "this could commit us to further action."

Another student against the American intervention and the fighting is Kathy Coffman, a freshman computer science major. Coffman feels that "fighting a war is one thing, but killing innocent women and children is another. I think the Israelis could have used other means."

When asked about the American Intervention, she added, "I do not think we had any business getting involved."

Ginger Pierce, a second-year math student, says, "the Israelis were justified in what they did, but the Americans should not get involved in anything unless directly assaulted."

Another viewpoint is that of Carol Kyzer, a freshman engineering student, who says, "Yes, they were justified in what they did. The PLO has abused everybody. The way the peacekeeping force handled the evacuation was all right. It made sure no more harm came to the people."

David Brill, a computer science major and a senior says, "Israel was justified in what they have done, but because of the next major nuclear engagement will probably be there."

Hiyam Ramini, a sophomore computer science major and a Palestinian native, has a more personal involvement in the conflict. "Israel is not justified in its takeover of land that until 1948, had been Palestinian," says Ramini. "The United States sees the PLO as terrorists, but they simply have lost patience waiting for someone to return their land. The sad thing is that both could live peacefully. The United States is a melting pot. Why can not Israel be one too? We have been waiting to go back to our land, but the moment will never come."

Ramini adds that "the Americans did not help the Palestinians. They did not help the women and children. Evacuating and separating the PLO will not help."

Ramini also feels the US should not give Israel money and support, but should let them solve their problems on their own way.

Each of the seventeen students polled stated that they felt the fighting in the Middle East is not over, despite the evacuation of the PLO out of the Beirut area.

As David Gaddis, a freshman criminal justice major, says, "things are not over. These people do not need a reason to fight. Religious wars just go on forever."

UP Holds Extra Auditions

University Playhouse will conduct an additional session to fill a role for a black male in its fall production of Lillian Hellman's "Toys in the Attic." The audition will be held Thursday, September 16, at 4:00 pm in Morton Hall Room 300. This is a small but pivotal role in the production, which is slated for the VBCC Playhouse October 21-31.

Interested persons are invited to attend. For further information, please contact Mr. Paul Webb in Communication Arts Program, NB 332 or 865-6645.

Library Grace Period

A one-month "grace" period from over-due fines will be instituted by the UAH Library for full-time faculty checkouts. The month will begin on the date stamped on the book pocket and will end exactly one month later.

The first over-due notice will constitute a notification that the "grace" period is in progress.

All over-due material with due dates prior to Sept. 7, 1982 will still be subject to fines computed from their due date.

UAH Gallery of Art Exhibit

The UAH Gallery of Art opens the new exhibition year with an exhibition of drawings by Donna Lind-Pinter. The exhibition will open Friday, September 10 and run through September 30.

Donna Lind-Pinter's works deal with figures in motion. She is more interested in capturing the feeling of movement than a physical portrait of her figures. These compositions tend to be abstracted, emphasizing color and line.

One-person exhibitions Ms. Lind-Pinter has had include exhibitions at the 515 Gallery, Atlanta, Ga.; Livermore Gallery, Memphis, Tenn.; Chastain Art Center, Atlanta Ga. She has also been included in numerous group exhibitions in Georgia and Pennsylvania.

Gallery hours are Monday through Thursday, 12 noon to 6:00 p.m.

Annual Fiddler's Convention

Cahaba Temple Shriners will host the fifth state and seventh annual Fiddling and Bluegrass Convention on Friday and Saturday, September 17 and 18 at Cahaba Shrine Temple on Pulaski Pike at Winchester Road in Huntsville, Alabama.

With $4,000 in prize money, contestants are attracted from dozens of states, bringing different talents to the convention. Stunt acts from Nashville and other country music capitals will be on hand to welcome guests.

Also, there will be TV and anchormen from each of Huntsville's Channels. With Huntsville News Editor Billy Joe Cooley, they have donated their time acting as Masters of Ceremonies on Saturday afternoon, September 18.

Come and enjoy the over 25 Bluegrass bands, and over 200 fiddlers, strummers and buck dancers who will be entertaining and competing for prize.

To slam or not to slam

by Lois Lane

Well, we stopped by for a little while to see what was happening at the Union Saturday night. It was N nada The Whales, packing them in, as usual. The fraternities really love this band, probably because the lead singer, Walter Berry, encourages, exhorts, and downright demands the crazy behaviour that we've all come to know and love so well—the whoops and hollers, the double-decker dancing, and now, that exciting phenomenon known as slam dancing.

Gee, boys will be boys. I just hope some of them got home all right after being knocked gleefully to the floor by their friends and peers or after an especially satisfying head-on collision with their roommate.

This kind of dancing is not for the faint-hearted. And, taking into consideration that the usual UAH Cabaret audience is pretty faint-hearted about normal dancing (if there is such a thing), slam dancing would pretty much seem to be an activity that left everyone out except those who love imagining that any second they'll be treated to the sight of blood or broken bones; or those who enjoy risking the same.

No, no, no one was hurt! (Not that they'd let on, anyway.)

Molly Grommels has gotten a discreet and responsible security team together to watch for trouble and lighted cigarettes, but I suppose what she can't do anything about is the domination of the dance floor by a bunch of would-be punks. ("Punks" is used here as a non-judgemental term, in the same way one might use the word "grooples.")

The only thing that is independent Cabaret-goers can do is to fight dancing with dancing. That is, fill the dancing space with bodily activity that is more conducive to getting to know each other better, and to expressing our physical urges in a less intimidating, more neighborly way.

If we leave the dance floor to the sляmmers, we have no choice but to sit and watch their semi-dangerous antics, thus remaining spectators to this ultimately boring, pseudo-violent sport.

UAH Hockey Team

The UAH Charger Ice Hockey Team is presently looking for a person interested in working as the equipment manager. This is a non-salaried position which starts October 1. Responsibilities include repair of equipment, inventory of equipment, distribution of equipment and hockey sticks, sharpening skates, and other miscellaneous duties. This person will be required to attend all home hockey games at the VBCC and will possibly have the opportunity to travel with the team to away games.

This is an excellent opportunity to meet new people, possibly receive class credit for field experience, learn sports management and hockey operations, and work with the best club hockey team in the nation.

Please contact Doug Ross, Head Hockey Coach, at the UAH Athletic Department for an interview at 995-0144.

When Performance Must Be Measured By Results.
Charger’s Tenth Year

By VIRGINIA LETSON
Sports Staff Writer

This year, the UAH Chargers celebrate their tenth anniversary. UAH soccer began in 1978 with Dr. Osip Stromecky, who still coaches the team today.

The following nine seasons saw the Chargers win five area championships which took them to five national tournaments.

A losing season is unheard of where the Chargers are concerned. Their overall record has been a very successful 104-33-10.

October 2 is the date of the first home game. The Chargers will play their first game on the new soccer field, located directly across from the Sprague Hall parking lot.

Several of last year’s players have graduated, so there are some new faces on the team.

Three of the new players are from Granite City, Illinois. This city, somewhat larger than Huntsville, is known for its expertise in soccer.

In fact, a total of six players from Granite City are on the team. All of them went to the same high school and played soccer together before coming to UAH.

The players came to UAH either through efforts of their high school coach or ties with older players. They say, however, that they chose UAH as a school, as well as a place to play soccer.

Team members feel good about the upcoming season. Danny Meadenta, one of the new players, commented, “I think we are going to have a really good team this year. We have good captains. Getting back into the concept of the game, working on skills and ball contact are things I personally need to work on.”

Ralph Bush, a junior from Pasadena, Calif., is back after being out with a bad knee during the 1980-81 season.

“This year, I feel like the team has real unity. We need experience working together,” Bush said. “By the time we have our first home game, the team should be at its peak.”

Fred Schuler, a senior this year, is from Granite City, where his father presides as mayor of this soccer resource metropolis. “We need conditioning in all areas but there is definite team unity with the Chargers this year,” Schuler said.

Dr. Stromecky, who is at the heart of the success of soccer not only at UAH but all over Alabama, is known as the “Father of Soccer in Alabama.” He has been playing soccer since he was a boy in the Ukraine and in Germany. He has played professional soccer both in the United States and in Germany.

Dr. Stromecky has been teaching at UAH for a total of sixteen years. He is a Doctor of Philosophy and of Foreign Languages and Literature and is also Chairman of the Foreign Language Department.

“Soccer is a beautiful hobby that keeps me in shape and mentally alert,” said Stromecky.

In celebration of the team’s tenth anniversary, all home games this year will be free of charge to all UAH fans. The only exception will be the UAH-Alabama A & M game on October 20, which will be played at Milton Frank Stadium.
UAH PROFILE

By R.M. BONEBRAKE

Graves states that this will provide increased stability for the group because these students will be around for four years. The Wind Ensemble, he explains, has traditionally been a good performing group, but it has been unstable due to the transience of the members. He expects this change will eliminate the problem.

To make it convenient for the students, he has changed the rehearsal times to late afternoon on Mondays and Wednesdays and has shortened the times to one and one-half hour sessions.

Dr. Graves has already contacted eligible freshmen and has begun the auditions.

He expects to have at least a 20 percent response to his invitation this first year alone.

He says he does not have any specific changes in mind for the kind of music students will perform but wants input from the members concerning their attitudes and preferences.

Dr. Graves plans to continue having two major performances per quarter. He likes the idea of having the group perform before high schools and other civic organizations for public relations value to UAH.

Since he has had extensive experience with tour groups, maybe one day the UAH Wind Ensemble will also be going on tour.

STAR WARS

By BILL SAVAGE
exponent staff writer

"Star Wars," one of the most successful movies in the cinema, will return to Huntsville a third time when it is shown this week in the Student Union building.

The first time "Star Wars" came to Huntsville, it was well received by both audience and critics…as it was all around the country. The film, not considering inflation, soon became the all-time box-office champ. Although other films such as "The Empire Strikes Back" and "E.T." have surpassed the initial gross of "Star Wars," the film has steadily increased its total receipts enough to keep ahead of any other competition.

"Star Wars" is one of the best films for several reasons. The special effects at that time were the best in the cinema, and are still astounding to this day. The story, thus the film, is not particularly mind-expanding, but is entertaining.

All of the actors in "Star Wars" are relatively unknown, except for Alec Guinness and Peter Cushing. It is easier to believe the actors "are" their characters for this reason.

The one aspect of the film which sets it apart from many others is the mass appeal it has. Everyone, from small children to adults, enjoys the movie either for its action/adventure into outer space, or for the ideas that it expresses in a simple, entertaining way.

"Star Wars" is, in short, one of the most entertaining films to appear on a screen.

Alpha Tau Omega Welcomes Freshmen

The Brothers of Alpha Tau Omega, Theta Pi Chapter of UAH, are pleased to welcome all incoming freshmen to UAH. UAH is an excellent school and ATO hopes that your years here will be both pleasant and rewarding.

One of the pleasant and rewarding experiences at UAH for you may be fraternity. There are many benefits to being in a fraternity. These include social activities, such as parties and sorority mixers, inter-fraternal competition in Intramurals, social service functions, and help in striving for academic excellence.

This summer ATO rushed and pledged ten incoming freshmen. Brian Prope, Bob Currie, Jim Currie, Charles Bryan, George Bowen, Bert Gengle, Ken Bolling, David Avery, John Rilse and Tim Aldridge make up the summer pledge class. In the coming weeks, ATO plans to be as successful for its fall pledge class.

This fall will be filled with activities for ATO. Intramural football is fast approaching. Considering last year's perfect record (0 wins, 3 losses), the future can only be less bleak than the past. The sixth annual Halloween party will be held on Saturday, October 30. Hatterfox, a well-known home-grown band, will provide rock and roll for this campus-wide party.

The ATO chapter house is located at 4426 Myrtle Drive in Twin Oaks. The phone number is 830-0297. ATO,

Mosley Appointed Intern

Jeff Mosley, political science major at the University of Alabama in Huntsville, has been named to the U.S. Rep. Ronnie Flippo's (D-Ala.) office as an intern for three months, starting Aug. 23, 1982.

According to Pete Kelley, Flippo's press secretary, Mosley was in competition for the position with a number of other outstanding students from Alabama.

"He was selected from his application, his outstanding record academically and his personal accomplishments," Kelley said. "We are looking forward to having him here and are eager to help him in this new level of experience."

Mosley is the third intern from UAH to be selected by Flippo. He follows Barry Cline and Jenny Lynne Clark. After talking with Cline and hearing details of his experiences in Washington, Mosley is eager to start to work for the congressman.

Mosley hopes to attend law school in the future. He would like to seek a career in politics.
