Space program seeks co-op students

by Jeanne Lanzaro

"The Co-operative Education Program now has a new initiative that will benefit potential co-op students of all schools at UAH," said George Turnmeyer, Co-op Director. A new program with the Space Camp at the Space and Rocket Center is being planned to start this spring. An orientation will begin on Dec. 12 at 3 p.m., in Room 200 of Morton Hall.

All students interested in co-op with pay at the Space Camp are invited to attend. There will be 17 openings for students to start on the work program this spring and 17 to start in the summer. Students alternate on quarter of work with one quarter of taking classes.

"This will be an exciting opportunity for students who wish to get practical experience in education, teaching, counseling, management, liberal arts, and science," Turnmeyer said. Previously, the Co-op Program was directed primarily toward students in the fields of engineering, science and nursing.

"Now the opportunity to get practical work experience will be open to all students," said Co-op coordinator, Shelby Counce. "We're really excited about this." Students will be working with model sixth, seventh and eighth graders from all over the world, according to Turnmeyer. "This will be a great opportunity for UAH."

Turnmeyer said. Late freshmen through seniors are eligible to apply. Students being sought after will be role models, said Counce. "Role models for scientists of the future," adds Co-op Coordinator, Kathleen Murphy.

Those interested can obtain more information by calling the Co-op Office, 895-6741.

Freefalling professor brings exam

by Jeanne Lanzaro

"It wasn't a bird, or a plane, or a meteorite that came falling out of the sky near the Science Building Nov. 16 at 3:45 p.m. To the amazement of the Physics 112 class and the campus police, it was none other than the Physics Department's own Dr. Gordon Emisle, bringing down to earth his final exam.

"I wanted my students to relax before taking their final. Everyone always gets so uptight and tense," said Emisle, an avid parachutist with over 250 jumps behind him. "I thought this would be a good way for the students to have some fun and loosen up." Emisle said he did it for his last physics class and they really enjoyed it.

According to his students, this is nothing unusual for the unique Dr. Emisle.

"He's an interesting individual," said David O'Dell, a sophomore in Electrical Engineering. "He makes physics interesting and even fun. By giving a lot of examples, he makes it interesting.

"He teaches physics with a lot of calculus," said Fritz Grant, a sophomore in Mechanical Engineering. "Emisle says that calculus was invented to describe physical phenomena.

The Assistant Physics Professor who's been with UAH for over two years now, has been described as "unique," "different," "fun," "interesting," and "weird." I really enjoy what I'm doing. I'm not just sitting back and letting it happen, but I'm living every minute of it," said Emisle.

He obtained his Bachelor of Science with first class honors in physics and astronomy at the University of Glasgow. Emisle received his Ph.D. in astronomy at the same university in 1979 at the age of 23. Now, having over 50 publications credited to his name, he reviews the publications of others.

Emisle has taken numerous courses and he's scheduled to start on chemistry this term. In addition to speaking French fluently, he's passively fluent in Russian. "I've just finished taking a lot of Russian courses, but I still have some difficulty speaking it."

Emisle likes to get into different kinds of challenging things to "keep the old brain ticking."

His favorite pastime and love is skydiving. "People think it's dangerous, but actually it's very exciting and a lot of fun."

According to the U.S. Parachute Association, last year's statistics show that there were only 29 deaths for more than 6 million jumps. Emisle says that 28 of those deaths resulted from improper use of equipment and carelessness.

"There's actually more of a risk driving to the drop zone. If you can make it there the dangerous part is over. The next thing is getting out of the plane."

Emisle goes out to the drop zone at Gadsden Airport just about every Saturday and invites anyone interested in having a great time to come along. Jumps start at 10 a.m. "I also give skydiving lessons," said Emisle, a fully qualified and licensed skydiving instructor.

You can break into the enticing sport for $80. "I can have you jumping in three hours."

A person's first five jumps are static-line jumps. After that you pull your own chute and then you can learn to freefall. "The $80 for your first jump includes all the instruction you'll ever need, equipment rental, and airplane. After that jumps run anywhere from $30 to $85."

Students seem to love Emisle and the feeling seems to be mutual. "I really like being their friend. Students seem to feel free to talk to me. I love going for a beer with them."

Emisle is also a firm supporter for a bar in the new Student Union.

Beware of the December thief!

"Prior to the holidays, we have a rash of purses and billfolds stolen and items taken from unlocked cars," said Campus Police Chief Bud Nayman.

Personal possessions should not be left unattended even for short periods of time.

"Even if you are working in an office and step out for only a few minutes," warned Nayman, "you should take your purse with you.

"We have a number of individuals roaming the halls in November and December. These individuals are young kids, usually college age. When they see a secretary leave her office, they slip in and get her purse.

The UAH Library is especially vulnerable to this type of crime. Students shouldn't leave articles lying around while searching for a book or making a copy at the Xerox machine. It only takes a second for someone to grab a purse and slip away," Nayman cautioned.

Stolen purses are often found in restrooms and usually nothing has been taken except cash. Credit cards and other such valuables are still in the purse.

Articles left in plain view in an automobile are also susceptible to theft. The majority of those reported are valuables that were left in unlocked cars," said the Police Chief.

"Anything of value should not be left lying in plain view especially in unlocked cars," he advised.

"Cars should always be locked and purses and other valuables should never be left lying around anytime of the year. However, November and December are the worst months for theft," the Chief concluded.

Olympic competition struggle between powers

by David Rogers

The Olympic games are perhaps the most visible symbol of the competition and differences between the United States and the Soviet Union.

For several months now, the American people have been bombarded constantly by radio, television and newspaper advertisements which tell them to buy a specific type of jeans, soft drink or special button because these are the "official" products of the United States Olympic Team.

Before the summer Olympic games actually begin, the average television viewer will probably be dizzy-headed and nauseated after hearing about these flag-waving, patriotic products and their equally red-blooded sponsors for the millionth time. While profitting from your patriotic spirit and guilt, enterprising capitalists such as these really do help the U.S. Olympic team.

The average American athlete headed for Los Angeles in '84 will have conquered many obstacles before getting to compete in the competition. This typical person may have had to work his training around his part-time or even full-time job, and possibly a college career with little or no financial help from anyone outside his or her family.

The Soviet Athlete, however, doesn't have any of these problems to hurt his chances for a gold medal in the Games. While the Russian athlete may have a job aside from his training, he isn't expected to actually work at this job.

Olympic hopes from the U.S.S.R. are picked at an early age to develop fully the athletic talents that they have. This means rigorous physical training and mental conditioning under almost ideal conditions are the means used to assure that Soviet athletes will win big at the Olympic Games.

While the American athlete doesn't get the constant opportunities to develop physically or the financial backing of his Soviet counterpart, he does receive support in knowing that he is competing the right way—honestly.

The Olympic Games are supposed to be friendly competitions between the amateur athletes of the world. This tradition has been marred by some nations who want to use them as a proving ground for their own superiority. No, the United States companies who sponsor our athletes are not just looking out for the pride of the nation, but when you do eventually get sick of hearing about their products, at least you can be proud to know that this volunteer support is in the best spirit of amateur athletic competition.

Alumni ticket raffle raises $2800 and school spirits

by David Rogers

The 1983 ticket drawing succeeded magnificently with alumni, students, faculty and the Huntsville community raising over $2,800 for UAH scholarships.

Jean B. Nobbitt, a UAH alumnus, won the two free tickets to the Game of the Year Plus $100.

Since its inception in 1978, the football drawing has raised over $2,800 for UAH scholarships.

The top five sellers were: Sharon Webster, who sold 130 tickets, next was Barry Wilson, selling 100 tickets, close behind in third place was Charlene Wales who sold 96 tickets, and Melissa Venable and James Brewer were tied for the final two spots with 50 tickets each.

The top five sellers will be rewarded with the following prizes: A season ticket pass to UAH hockey and basketball, dinners at Stein's and Ale and TGI Friday's and also men's and women's fragrances from Parisian.

As an added bonus, the top five ticket sellers received prizes for their diligent efforts. The top five sellers were: Sharon Webster, who sold 130 tickets, next was Barry Wilson, selling 100 tickets, close behind in third place was Charlene Wales who sold 96 tickets, and Melissa Venable and James Brewer were tied for the final two spots with 50 tickets each.

The UAH Alumni Association was also very pleased to work with seven UAH clubs and organizations in selling tickets. The Alumni Association provided the tickets and returned half of the proceeds on all tickets sold by clubs.

A special thanks goes to Chairman David Branham who worked extra hard to make this year's Alabama/Auburn the best ever. The Alumni Association would like to thank all of the alumni, students, faculty, staff, university organizations, the Huntsville businesses who contributed prizes and the Huntsville community.
UAH actresses nominated for scholarship

Two actresses featured in University Playhouse’s recent production of Tartuffe have been nominated to compete for the prestigious Irene Ryan Scholarship through the American College Theatre Festival.

Ginny Geddes, a senior English major who played Elmire, and Melinda Yearwood, a junior English and history major who played Dorine, will audition during the Region IV festival in Tuscaloosa, January 24-29.

The regional festival will be hosted this year by the University of Alabama. It will feature performances of nominated productions as well as scholarship contenders from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

The Irene Ryan Scholarships are awarded at both regional and national levels. Funds to support the scholarships were bequeathed by the late Irene Ryan, best known for her role as Granny in television’s “The Beverly Hillbillies.”

Tartuffe was an associate entry in the American College Theatre Festival (ACTF), now in its sixteenth year, and it marks UAH’s first association with ACTF. The production was directed by Paul Webb, Assistant Professor of Communication Arts, who will advise Geddes and Yearwood in their preparation for the scholarship auditions.

ACTF is produced by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in cooperation with the University and College Theatre Association, a division of the American Theatre Association. ACTF is sponsored by the Amoco Companies and supported in part by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education.

Approximately 400 colleges and universities nationwide are taking part in this year’s ACTF activities.

Entertainment editor recovers to write again

by Richard Gilliam

I've been asked to fill up space for this issue. This is somewhat easier than it should be since I now occupy several additional pounds added following a month-long medically ordered period of non-exercise.

No, I'll not give you the name of my physician. It isn't worth it to bash in the buck of your head (on a racquetball court no less) just so you can be told exercise is bad for you. You'll have to find some other way to rationalize your slothfulness.

Actually saying that you occupy several additional pounds is a non-sequitur in the same class as Han Solo's making the Kessel run in twelve parsecs.

Filling up the paper this week wouldn't be so tough if the ducks down at the pond hadn't gotten uppity all of a sudden. Went down to do a follow-up story on them and found that they now had an agent. You make 'em a star and how soon they forget. I understand some of the newly elected SGA legislators are upset they only made page seven. Look, when you can waddle and quack with a little more authority, we'll consider covering you before page seven.

Actually, I consider our paper of Nov. 2 to be the single worst issue of any publication I've ever seen. The ducks got a five column photo story on page one while the SGA elections didn't get covered until the aforementioned page seven.

I was in Chicago last week. What a totally sorry issue. Was it really necessary to run the poorly reproduced ad copy by the review of "Tootsie", or for that matter, sports photos that were bigger than the article they accompanied? The Budweiser ad was both badly sized and mis-centered. I could ramble on, but to what purpose?

I should add a disclaimer that these are solely my opinions. But I hardly think I'm alone among UAH students.

Oh, yeah, the news. SGA Film Series has set its winter quarter schedule. As you'll see elsewhere they've set "Blue Thunder" as the first offering.

Speaking of the Film Series, I think Glenn may actually still be the director, these things changing quickly, as you know. Glenn was supposed to resign at the end of the fall semester, but the new director, if there exists, has yet to manifest himself. Wills will remain as interim director until the end of this term.

Showtimes will be 8:15 Thursday, 7 and 9:30 Friday and Saturday. "Bambi" and "Gone with the Wind" will have only one showing each evening. There will be no midnight movies this quarter. Quiet Riot and Nightranger will appear on campus Dec. 27 in concert. More on this next paper.

I've also been given a tentative Cabaret schedule. Dec. 18 "Piggy's" will perform rock and roll comedy. Jan. 13 "Nake the Whales" will do sixties rock. "The Amazing Jonathan" and "Jack Gallagher" will do a double comedy bill Jan. 27, Feb. 3 will be a campus wide talent show. Who knows, you might try out for "the exponent".

Charger hockey team rolls on

The Chargers dominated the entire game until about the middle of the final period when the Redbirds made their only goal.

Mike Finn scored first for the Chargers after a pass from Dave Wallenstein. With only 1:03 remaining in the first period, Tom O'Dwyer passed the puck to Gentry Ellis who left the period at 24.

During the second period, Charger Terry Conway scored one, and then assisted Kevin Monaco for another Charger goal. Dan Dorothy assisted Andy Gilbert for Gilbert's first goal of the evening. Tom O'Dwyer left the second period at 60 after his goal.

Andy Crossett made the first goal of the third period. Brian Kelly added two more while Gilbert added another. The final score was 10-1.

The next night, Nov. 12, the Chargers again overpowered the Redbirds, still only allowing one goal while the Chargers scored eighteen.

Freshman John Buscemi led the Chargers with four goals. Mark Rogers, Andy Gilbert, Brian Kelly, Terry Conway, and Dave Wallenstein each scored two goals during the evening.

Dan Dorothy, Will Hereford, Gentry Ellis, and Randy Johnson each scored one to make the final score 18-1. The Redbirds scored their one goal in the third period.

The Chargers beat the Penn State Nittany Lions on Nov. 18 by the score of 6-3.

Senior Bob Quaile was first to score for the Chargers during the first period. Dave Wallenstein and Frank Heller also scored, which put the Chargers ahead 3-0 in the first period.

Brian Kelly started off the second period with his goal while Quaile soon added another. Wallenstein made another goal to end the game 6-3. Penn State scored twice in the second period and once in the third.

The game was tied when the official time ran out on Nov. 19 against Penn State, but Charger Kevin Mills won it for the Chargers after a pass from Dan Dorothy.

Faculty shows art

The UAH Gallery of Art is presenting its Faculty Show through Dec. 16. Included in the show will be works by all faculty members of the UAH Department of Art and Art History. The Department’s Art Historian, Jane E. Kromm, a graduate of Harvard and Emory Universities, will display her original fiber art of a French theatre interior. Jack Dempsey, painting specialist in the Department, will present his slide-dissolve show entitled, “The Anatomy of Expression.” Michael Crouse, who is represented by Abstein Gallery of Art in Atlanta and also teaches design and printmaking at UAH, will exhibit his recent works. Richard Pope, who instructs in the communication graphics area and is known for his mastery of calligraphy, will display his unique works of art. Jeffery Bayer, Chairman of the Department and sculpture instructor, will display his architectural stained glass pieces. The Gallery is open to the public weekday afternoons from 1:30-5:30 p.m. Admission is free.
