Editor sought for UAH literary magazine

UAH's Publications Board wishes to announce that it is seeking an editor-in-chief for the eighth annual edition of the school literary magazine, which will have a spring 1984 release date.

As in past years, the editor need not be an English major, but must have a 2.5 overall grade point average under the 4.0 system (1.5 under the old 3.0 system), be of sophomore standing or above, and be an enrolled UAH student for three of the four terms of the academic year for which the appointment to the position is effective.

Ideally, an applicant would also need to be able to spend at least 10 or more hours a week working on the magazine and would have previous publications experience and/or course work in art, communication, English and/or business-related fields.

The literary magazine editor needs to be able to coordinate and lead a staff of student volunteers in a cheerful, democratic manner. Duties will also include ultimate responsibility for soliciting submissions, editing, advertising and distribution of the magazine, as well as keeping records and helping to find and prepare the way for the next editor.

There will be a small salary as compensation, but the biggest reward is actually the learning experience in running what is, in effect, a small business.

Other positions to be filled are: four submissions editors to review art, fiction, non-fiction and poetry, a publications specialist, two technical editors and a publicity manager. A keen sense of commitment, dedication and enthusiasm are the most important qualities necessary for all these positions, as well as that of editor-in-chief.

Applicants for any of the positions mentioned above should submit a resume, along with a letter of application, addressed to Dr. Margaret Bond, Chairperson of the Publications Board, and bring them to the Information Booth, Morton Hall, by Jan. 15, 1984. The applicant should include his/her qualifications and other reasons he/she should be considered for the position, including why the applicant desires the position.

Basketball begins

Here's a shot from last Friday night's game against Arkansas State, which UAH won in the last 5 seconds, 62-60. The men's team will be on the road until Jan. 4. For more sports, see page 10.

Lancers serve in various ways

New year, new I.D.

New photo IDs will be made and old photo IDs will be validated during the following dates and times only: Jan. 5, 9 and 12 from 9 a.m.-9 p.m., and Jan. 6 from 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
The students should bring a driver's license and a current activity card to verify identity.

All students must have a valid photo ID for the present term in order to use the library, to participate in student elections, athletic events and all functions for which a student may be entitled to special privileges.

assist with the SACS Self-Study, and also worked at Fall Commencement, transporting the Board of Trustees and ushering graduates and guests to their seats for the ceremonies.

Many of the active group's responsibilities occur at the Noojin House and Echols Hill. As part of their training, the members learn the history of both locations and of the UAH campus, so each member is ready to give tours to guests who are interested.

The Alternate Lancers are Cheryl Bates, Pat Cooney and Andrea Mosby.

Mrs. John C. Wright is the group's sponsor. She is assisted by Carol Martin, Van Brown and Virginia Quick.

 Everybody's off but UAH!

by Suzy Smith

Everyone probably realizes by now that UAH returns to school on Monday, Jan. 2. Since the New Year begins on a Sunday this year, the Bowl games will be played on Monday.

A major conflict of interest is present for UAH students, faculty and staff. How could we make such a mistake?

This conflict was brought to Dr. Anderson's attention over two months ago, and nothing had been done. Several others have voiced their disapproval through General Information, and still nothing has been done.

Ten of the best college football teams in the nation will be performing on Monday and UAH is trying to hold classes.

If you're a red-blooded American who would like to see this mistake corrected, get in touch with the people who can make the corrections. This must be an accident; who could do it on purpose?

Call or go by the office of Dr. Anderson, Vice President for Academic Affairs, Madison Hall Room 123, 895-6338; or by Suzy Smith, Associate Director, Student Affairs, Morton Hall Room 203, 895-6700.

The administration welcomes the concerns of the students. After all, who foots the bill to keep this university in operation? By the way, the Bowl schedule is as follows: Fiesta Bowl, 12:30 p.m.-Ohio State vs. Pittsburgh; Cotton Bowl, 12:30 p.m.-Texas vs. Georgia; Rose Bowl, 4 p.m.-Illinois vs. UCLA; Sugar Bowl, 7 p.m.-Auburn vs. Michigan; Orange Bowl, 7 p.m.-Nebraska vs. Miami.

Do you want to help decide your SGA Programming?

Positions are available for three (3) student Representatives to serve on the Student Programming Council. Apply in Room 212 of the Union Bldg., and turn in applications to SGA President Mark Chandler room 212 by January 6.
UAH intramurals seek players

The UAH Intramural Program announces the start of the season for basketball and volleyball. Each year we have a great turn-out for these activities and we are expecting the best turn out ever this year.

To participate in these sports all you have to do is be a currently enrolled UAH student and not have a collegiate letter in the sport in which you plan to participate. There is no charge except a little sweat.

To participate, pick up a team roster in Room 205 D Spragins Hall and get every player on your team to fill out a player verification form. If you do not have a team then, just fill out a player verification form and we’ll group all the teamless people together to form their own team.

We have four divisions of teams each year. Division A is for those people really serious about playing. But, perhaps you like to play and have not played for several years, then Division B is for you. We also have a Coed division, Division C and a womens division, Division D.

All team rosters are due in Spragins Hall Room 205 D by 5 p.m. today. There will be a captains’ meeting for both sports Dec. 16 at noon also at Spragins.

For further information call 895-6589. Everyone is invited to come and take part and make this the best year ever.

Fewer jobs for engineers

Washington, D.C. (CPS)

The job market for recent engineering grads has been cut in half, and starting salaries given to the grads who do get jobs have leveled off or declined, a new study by the Scientific Manpower Commission (SMC) says.

"The grads of '82 could pretty much name their jobs and their prices," recalls the SMC's Eleanor Babco. "But job offers are down by about 50 percent for last spring's graduates," she adds, "and we've even seen some drops in salaries for new engineers."

"We don't know if it was primarily the recession or if (last spring's grads) were just taking the first offers they got and not waiting for higher offers," she says.

"Recruiting was down tremendously for the last school year," she notes, however, "so we think it was more that the number of job offers was actually down."

Among chemical engineers, for instance, the number of job offers has declined from 30,816 in 1982 to 26,736 for 1983. "Starting salaries for chemical engineers also dropped," Babco notes, as did starting pay for chemical, civil, and geological engineers.

Although job offers were down in all engineering fields and many suffered drops in starting salaries, grades in a few fields got increases in starting pay. "Electrical engineering salaries were up 3.1 percent, while petroleum engineering salaries were up only 1.1 percent," Babco reports.

Job offers as well as salaries were down for chemistry, agriculture, and other physical and earth science majors, the report also reveals. Salaries increased for math, biology, and computer science majors.

U.S. Health and Human Services sets competition

(HHS Press Release)
U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Secretary, Margaret M. Heckler, recently launched the department's second annual competition among health professions students for the best papers on innovations in health promotion and disease prevention.

Winners of the competition, called the Secretary's Award for Innovations in Health Promotion and Disease Prevention, will receive awards of $3,000 for first place, $2,000 for second place, and $1,000 for third place. Each of the semifinalists will receive $250.

Contestants should present proposals for health promotion and disease prevention in the community or at the worksite. Submissions for the 1984 competition should focus on one of the following health problems: high blood pressure, family planning, pregnancy and infant health, immunization, sexually transmitted diseases, toxic agents, occupational safety and health, accident prevention and injury control, fluoridation and dental health, infectious diseases, smoking and health, alcohol and drug abuse, physical fitness and exercise, nutrition, and stress and violent behavior.

Entries will be judged on:
1) degree of innovation in approach to health promotion or disease prevention;
2) feasibility of approach; and
3) greatest potential impact on a community or population.

The competition is open to a broad range of health professions students enrolled full or part-time in baccalaureate or higher degree programs affiliated with the Federation of Associations of Schools of Health Professions, which is co-sponsoring the competition.

Eligible to compete are students of medicine, osteopathy, dentistry, nursing, veterinary medicine, optometry, pharmacy, podiatry, public health, health administration, health education and allied health professions.

Entries must be submitted by January 15, 1984 to the school the student attends. An entry may be no longer than 5,000 words. Papers will be judged first by participating schools, then by professional organizations, with a departmental panel making the final selections. Winners will be announced by the secretary in June, 1984.

Alabama ‘State Olympics’ planned

The 1984 Alabama Sports Festival will be held in Birmingham and Jefferson County on July 6, 7 and 8.

The Festival will be jointly sponsored by the Amateur Athletes Society and the Governor's Commission on Physical Fitness in conjunction with the Governor's Office, the City of Birmingham, Jefferson County, the Birmingham Area Chamber of Commerce and the award winning country music group 'Alabama'.

A statewide olympic-type competition, sanctioned by the U.S. Olympic Committee, is promoting this statewide program of statewide amateur athletic competition patterned after the Olympics, with variations necessitated by availability of facilities, equipment and expertise.

The U.S. Olympic Committee is promoting this statewide competition in many states,” said Gene Bartow, head basketball coach/athletic director at UAB. Bartow added, “It is a vital program to develop future U.S. Olympic team members and deserves everyone’s support.”

The group ‘Alabama’ is the official celebrity spokesman for the Alabama Sports Festival. They are actively appealing for financial contributions through receptions statewide.

Greg Fowler, media relations for the group, states, “The group ‘Alabama’ is really excited about the Alabama Sports Festival and the fact that the state has come up with a way to help train future Olympic athletes. They wanted to be a part of it and pledged $15,000 themselves.”

Registration is free and open to all Alabama residents. An Alabama Athlete-Leader conference will be held July 6 during the day. That evening the opening ceremony will take place and the games will begin on July 7 and continue through the 8.

As many as 15 sports could be offered. The exact games and sites will be announced later.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting the office of the Governor’s Commission on Physical Fitness first by calling Union Street, Montgomery, AL 36130 or call 205/532-5686.

More about the UAH Library

by Nancy A. Parker

Did you ever walk into a library, more specifically, the UAH Library, and wonder just how a particular volume got on the shelf? Who decides that a certain book is needed? Who approves the selections? How are the books purchased? What happens between the time the new book arrives on the dock and is placed on the shelf?

Did you know that you can have a hand in the selection of a book for the UAH Library?

“There are two common ways of establishing the need for a book,” explained Vern Weisskopf. “Patrons can request materials and there are collection development procedures.”

The head of circulation elaborated:

“A UAH student, faculty or staff can request that the UAH Library order a certain book. If a patron sees that a collection is lacking in a certain area or notices a gap in a collection, that individual can simply go to the reference desk and ask for a request form.

“After the form is filled out, it should be returned to the reference librarian. The request will be given to the head of reference who will either forward it, upon approval, or seek consultation with the librarian who has collection development responsibility for that area.”

Collection development responsibilities are divided among various library staff members according to disciplines. For example, the science reference librarian selects books for engineering, the sciences and mathematics.

“We have five professional librarians whose duties include the responsibility of collection development,” Weisskopf continued.

“Our head of reference and head of acquisitions, with the concurrence of the director of the library, have final approval of all selections.”

Another method of collection development is the approval plan. This plan is in the process of being developed for some departments of UAH.

“Working in conjunction with UAH faculty,” Weisskopf explained, “our head of reference and our head of acquisitions and the book company representative set up a profile of needs.”

Weisskopf gave a hypothetical example of how this works.

“All books published in the United States and the United Kingdom in curriculum areas relevant to the UAH nursing program are sent here to the UAH Library. Faculty in the School of Nursing would have the opportunity to pick and choose what volumes would be beneficial for them here in the library.

All methods of acquiring books for the UAH Library are based on specific curriculum and research needs of each school or department at UAH.

“Librarians also use outside sources,” said Weisskopf, “such as book reviews, publishers’ catalogues and professional publications, as aids in their collection development responsibilities.”

A request for a book can be turned down for a number of reasons.

“A request for a book can be rejected,” stated Weisskopf, “because of a duplication or a specific book requested might not be appropriate for our needs.”

“We would not buy Lana Turner’s autobiography, but we would not,” Weisskopf reiterated.

“We rarely get textbooks. The UAH Library cannot supplement in that sense. All required textbooks can be obtained by students through the Book Nook. We do have parameters within which a request must fail.”

Expense is another criterion for book rejection.

“If a book is too expensive or if our budget is low, that, of course, would be a factor in whether we ordered a particular volume or not at that time. Purchase might be considered as funds became available.”

When approval is given for the purchase of a book, the request is turned over to the Acquisitions Department.

“Two employees called searchers check to be sure that the book we are ordering is not a duplication,” said Weisskopf. “Also, the searchers make sure the book ordered is the latest or desired edition and all information given is correct.”

A computer stores all ordering information and the orders are typed out by a printer.
"The book is then ordered from the publishers," Weisskopf said.

Assuming the book ordered is in-print and arrives at UAH within a reasonable length of time, another chain of events occurs before the book is placed on the library shelf.

"When the book reaches UAH, the first place it goes is to the Acquisitions Department," explained Weisskopf. "There the book is logged in, to the Acquisitions Department, placed on the library shelf. Invoices are prepared, and then the book gets sent to cataloging."

The UAH Library uses the Library of Congress classification system.

"We have two professional catalogers. They catalog the book from cataloging information that usually comes with the book. Sometimes this information is sent later."

"Original cataloging and classification is still done where Library of Congress is not available," Weisskopf said. "The catalogers refer to 33 to 35 volumes of the Library of Congress to ascertain the correct classifications."

After the book has been cataloged, cataloging assistants type a set of cards for the book.

"This set includes the shelf list card and cards for the card catalog," explained Weisskopf, "usually author, title and subject heading cards. Also included is a book card and pocket placed in the back of the book. The cataloging assistants also type and place the labels on the spine of the book."

"The shelf list file is located in cataloging for in-house use and is very important to the library," stated Weisskopf. "All book holdings in the library are represented in this file."

After all this has been done, the cataloging department files the cards in the card catalog.

"This is no easy task," Weisskopf said. "I have rarely found errors in our card catalog. Our card catalog is in excellent condition."

The new books are placed on "trucks" (carts) when the cataloging department is finished and are taken to the circulation department.

"Circulation proofreads the book cards and labels and then the new books are placed on the 'new book' shelves close to the reference desk. Here our patrons can see the latest library acquisitions," Weisskopf continued.

Another method of acquisition of materials is through gifts.

"Copies of the library's gift policy are available at the reference desk and from the head of acquisitions," said Weisskopf.

That is a journey of a book. A journey that is not simple nor easy.

"Ordering and processing new books are just part of our responsibilities," smiled Weisskopf. "Many other aspects of the library demand our diligent and immediate attention."

Security is an everyday consideration, both the security of the patrons and the security of the materials. The library closely cooperates with the Campus Police.

"It is amazing how quickly they can be here when we have to call. The officers also walk about the grounds and through the library at different times," said Weisskopf.

Special sections and helpful aids offered by the UAH Library for the UAH student, faculty, staff and students from other colleges in the area include:

Student study carrels located in Phase II on all three floors.

"We have faculty carrels in Phase II on the second and third floor," stated Weisskopf. "The use of these are by reservation only."

UAH has a community service called user cards.

"These user cards are for people in the community that are not students or faculty of UAH," explained Weisskopf. "Or people who do not come under our reciprocal agreements. These cards can be purchased for a $10.00 fee."

"People with user cards are limited to the number of books they can check out at one time (two) and the check out period is limited to two weeks."

Another special section that the UAH Library offers is Government Documents.

"This section has its own librarian to help in assisting patrons," said Weisskopf. "The UAH Library is a selective Federal depository. Among the many useful documents, UAH has all up-to-date census material."

There are two bulletin boards located in the Indexes and Abstracts area on the first floor of Phase I for student and faculty use.

"All material must be approved by the head of the circulation before posting," advised Weisskopf.

Two special collections of which the UAH Library is quite proud are the Willy Levy Collection and the Robert E. Jones Congressional Papers.

"These collections are opened by appointment only," stated Weisskopf. "Patrons should contact the head of reference about these collections."

Another service offered by the UAH Library is the biographical search service, Dialog, and is available by request through the reference department.

"Inter-library loan service is available for UAH graduate students and faculty only," Weisskopf said.

The main library on the UAH campus has one branch that is located at the School of Primary Medical Care on Governors Drive.

"That is a cursory view of the UAH Library. There are many intricate details that make the library run smoothly and efficiently with many people guiding these factors professionally," Weisskopf concluded.

UAH has an outstanding academic library. It is here, on campus, mainly for the benefit of the UAH students and faculty. Every student should become completely familiar with their library, not only as an aid in their class assignments, but as an invaluable learning tool for years to come.

If any person has a question or suggestion, they should call either the circulation department at 895-6530 or the reference department at 895-6529.

One of the nicer things about the holiday season—
Disney highlights upcoming entertainment
by Richard Gilliam

Okay Mouseketeers! Gather round. Put on your ears. Mickey is coming and he's bringing Bambi with him.

In stark contrast to the usual blood and guts fare that has dominated the SPC Film Series, some of Walt Disney's finest animation will be offered this weekend at the Student Union. For those who have grown to despair the total lack of quality in recent cartoon efforts, this is a perfect chance to see classic animation.

Animation is an art which has suffered greatly in recent years. New cost-cutting production techniques have replaced the loving and painstaking standards set by Disney. Ironically, Disney Studios are themselves responsible for the low level state of affairs in the animation industry. Following Walt's death in 1966, his successors took his company and gave family filmmaking a bad name with one turkey after another.

Disney had a special charm in making cartoons that, while enjoyable to children, appealed every bit as much to adults. Disney never insulted his audience's intelligence. "Bambi" in particular is an example of this. "Bambi" is a rite of passage story, a parable that gently reminds that growing up contains both joy and sorrow and with maturity must come responsibility. "Bambi" is not merely a good cartoon, "Bambi" is good filmmaking that has well stood the test of time since its release in 1942. Sadly, "Bambi" specifically and Disney cartoons in general have come under heavy criticism by do-gooders who consider them too violent to be seen by today's children. At least Disney's films are, for the most part, still in release. Many cartoons by Max Fleischer and Walter Lantz are scarcely available, as much because they are considered "racially offensive" as because of the violence.

Running along with "Bambi" will be five Disney Christmas cartoons, "Once Upon a Winter Time", "Santa's Workshop", "Christmas Capers", "Pluto's Xmas Tree" and "The Night Before Christmas". Like "Bambi", these are all from the classic Disney period. And like real movie houses did in the old days, the cartoons will be run before the feature film. "Bambi" will be shown at 8:15 p.m. on Thursday night and at 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Also you should make note to catch "M*A*S*H" which will run Jan. 5-7. I can't recommend this film highly enough. Donald Sutherland and Elliot Gould star in Robert Altman's satiric comedy about military surgeons in war torn Korea. And for those of you who are only familiar with the wimpy television series of the same name, you haven't seen the real "M*A*S*H II". Showtimes are 8:15 Thursday night, and 7 and 9:30 Friday and Saturday.

Quiet Riot and Nightranger will do a concert at the Civic Center Tuesday, Dec. 27. Tickets are $9.50 in advance and $10.50 at the door. This is not a UAH event, so there is no student discount. Quiet Riot's album "Metal Health" hit no. 2 on the billboard charts recently.

If you're looking for quality entertainment for early next year, you might consider the Ice Capades at the VBCC. They will bring their all-new musical review to Huntsville for nine performances starting Jan. 10 and running through Jan. 16. Ticket prices range from $6.50 to $8.50 with half-price tickets available opening night as part of "WAAY-TV Family Night".

Have a nice Christmas!

The Charger Hockey team broke their eleven-game winning streak to the Penn State Nittany Lions on Saturday night, Dec. 10, by the score of 9-3. The Chargers had defeated the Nittany Lions the previous night by a score of 9-3. The Nittany Lions led the first period. The Chargers got onto the scoreboard when Tom O'Dwyer scored two goals during the second period. Bob Quaile scored the Chargers last goal in the third period.

The winning streak ended Saturday night. The Nittany Lions scored two goals during this period. Two players are out because of injuries. The Chargers are now 11-3-0 into the season. Five players have been benched for the remainder of the year. Five players are out until after Christmas. Two goals in the game Friday night against the Lions, Brian Kelly, Kevin Mills, and Kevin Monaco also scored during the first period.

During the second period, Tom O'Dwyer and Brian Kelly scored a goal each. The Nittany Lions scored two goals in the third period. Frank Keller scored the final UAH goal, leaving the score 9-3 UAH.

The winning streak ended Saturday night. The Nittany Lions scored two goals during this period. Kevin Monaco scored again in the third period. Frank Keller scored the final UAH goal, leaving the score 9-3 UAH.

The Chargers will be back home Dec. 17-18 to play St. Norbert College at 7:30 p.m. and 200 p.m. This will be the last game of 1983. The Chargers will be traveling to Colorado Springs to battle the U.S. Air Force Academy on Jan. 6, 1984.

Women's Basketball needs your support

by Laurie Ivy

The UAH Women's Basketball Team has had a bad streak of luck this season. Five players have been benched until after Christmas. Two players are out because of low grades, and three have been injured. According to Women's Basketball Coach, Donna Dunaway, "We have a lot of talent." She stated that there were good possibilities for a national title this year. The big upcoming games this year are against David Lipscomb, Jan. 3, and Berry College, Jan. 13.

Dunaway expressed discouragement over student turnout. "Everywhere we go we see great student turnout, but not here. We would appreciate any student support."

UAH students can attend the games for free with a current T.D. card. Non-students can obtain tickets at Spragins Hall.
