The Western Collegiate Hockey Association has unanimously accepted UAH Huntsville and granted the Chargers full-time membership in the conference beginning next season.

Chargers Hockey has been on life support for the past three years. UAH is the only Division I hockey program below the Mason-Dixon Line and they were operating independently with an endurance to call home.

UAH Hockey Gains New Life
By Taylor Reed, Sports Reporter

On Thursday morning, classes at UAH Huntsville were canceled around 12:30 p.m. due to snow. The timing of the decision, and the delay of Friday morning classes, have affected class schedules among other things, and have been criticized by some but compli-dated by others.

On Thursday morning, many schools and universities had already cancelled class. The weather forecast for the day included snow, but since it did not snow in the morning, the day went on.
When many students were already in class, or on their way to class, a decision to cancel was finally made.
Most students and people were leaving from workplaces at the same time, creating extremely slow and congested traffic.

Commuter students were affected the most. Many had to email their professors to ask if class was cancelled.

"It took me two hours to get home, when it usually takes me 15 minutes! Not to mention that the roads were very dangerous; an earlier decision would have made it easier for us," says Apari Abe-Opotok and Julia Schnider, two commuters from Madison, said.

UAH might have had their students working, had the administration not taken a decision to cancel during the week.
Several members of the faculty and professors said that it is a complicated decision. "UAH handled the situation very well, keeping in mind the fact that this state does not usually have to face such climatic conditions," Professor Wilkerson from the Philosophy Department said.

Some were not affected because they did not have class that day, but their Friday morning classes were delayed. "I was satisfied with the decision made to delay classes on Friday because there was considerable ice in the area I live in, and I would not have felt comfortable to drive," Brittany Vaughn, a UAH student, said.

Apparently, the situation was handled well, and it was not easy. If you did not receive email notifications of the cancelations, register for

On Monday, President Obama took the public oath of office in Washington D.C. for the second time to begin another four-year term in office amid a time of deep ideological and political division.

Obama was officially sworn in Sunday as required by the Constitution. Obama's second public inauguration was a star-studded event taking place in front of the Capital amid a sea of onlookers. Pop star Beyonce sang the event's rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner" and James Taylor performed "America the Beautiful." Inauguration Day was a star-studded event with a pair of Bibles owned by Chief Justice John Roberts and a Bible owned by Martin Luther King Jr. respectively.

Obama declared during his speech that, "our journey is not complete," and called for unity in Washington. "We cannot mistake absolutism for principle, or substitute spectacle for politics, or treat name-calling as substitute debate," Obama said. "We must act, knowing that our work will be imperfect. We must act, knowing that today's victories will be only partial, and that they will be up to those who stand here in four years, and forty years, and four hundred years hence to advance the timeless and the hope that spares Philadelphia hall." His remarks were a not-so-subtle call for greater effort from politicians to put aside partisan bickering and come together to work toward common goals.

Although the theme of the President's speech was one proposing qualified compromise, those on the left and right acknowledged that much of the speech leaves more questions rather than any actual direct action.

Obama's calls for collective action also highlighted future divisions as the U.S. is poised to default on many debts if the debt limit is not raised. The President also pointed to how Americans cannot truly be free because of "a privileged few." He went on to criticize Congress and former Republican Vice Presidential nominee Paul Ryan's strategy to reform entitlement spending during the campaign last year. "The commitments we make to each other - through Medicare, and Medicaid, and Social Security - these things do not say our initiative; they strengthen us. They do not make us a nation of takers; they free us to take the risks that make this country great," he said.

Some remain skeptical of whether the President can accomplish any of the agenda he laid out at the inauguration speech, which was peppered with "positive policy points usually reserved for State of the Union addresses," according to front CNN poll. Three-quarters of those surveyed believed the country was more divided than it has been in years. 56 percent believes the President will be an outstanding or an above average President, roughly the same number as President George W. Bush during his second inauguration.

A separate poll also showed Obama's first term poll numbers that, when averaged, ranked the third lowest of any President since WWII.

After the swearing in ceremony, the President signed a statement formally nominating his new cabinet officials and took in the night of the inauguration Day parade.

The mark of a good restaurant is not the size but the friendliness of its staff. At Super Heroes, 1812 Winchester Blvd. Huntsville, AL, Atmosphere: 8/10 Review: 10/10 Price: 7/10 Overall: 8/10

The mark of a good restaurant is not the size but the friendliness of its staff. At Super Heroes in one sentence, owner Mark Wadsworth said, "Diner food, drive-in speed, dive-bar attitude" and that is very apparent in the restaurant's name.

As for décor, Super Heroes is decked out in comic books, action figures and even a violin mural of Spider-Man. While immediately the door provides one certain nostalgia that even non-comic book fans can appreciate. You can expect a moderate wait, around 20 minutes, when during these busy hours, there is a comfortable Batman-themed waiting area to serve your super heroes craving until you are seated.

The staff is very friendly and attentive. My waitress for the evening, Lanie, was helpful with menu items and making sure everything got to your table quickly. She had a very interesting story about the one time she tipped in a Boston Pizza. They were going to a high school dance in a bus full of teenagers. How does a bus full of teenagers survive a high school dance? These things have to be done! I love her name. I also ordered a Zed Boba-Milkshake, which was subpar at best. The milkshake tasted like a Little Debbie cake at the bottom and nobody would ever drink it. The University of Alabama-Huntsville men's basketball team dropped their second straight home game on Saturday, losing to rival North Alabama by a final score of 81-71. UAH entered the imaginary friend game with a 13-2 record and a No. 3 national ranking after they dropped a home contest in Dallas State last weekend. UNA entered with an 11-3 record and a 2-1 record in the Gulf South Conference. UNA won the turnover battle en route to victory. The game will be played at 3 p.m. and can be followed online at www.uahchargers.com.

Remember having an imaginary friend as a kid? Whether or not you care to admit it, you and your imaginary friend probably never made the news. Unfortunately for him, Notre Dame linebacker Manti Te’o did.

Te’o’s story has been a saint during Notre Dame’s miraculous season. He is the best player on the nation’s top scoring defense and has been an inspiration for all who have been overcome by the death of his grandfather and his girlfriend during a 24-hour period in September. Unfortunately, Te’o’s win was the Heisman Trophy, but it is unlikely that the award’s winner should be both on and off the field. (Courtesy of thebiglead.com)

It makes you wonder if the vote would have gone if the story of Te’o’s girlfriend’s death was found out to be a lie all along. Which leads to the question, where is the fact checking in the media? The writer who introduced the story is another Sports Illustrated writer, Peter Thamel. If you remember the story of the Kansas basketball player that was not, Enes Kanter, then you remember Peter Thamel. He went on an extensive fact finding trip that ultimately led to the NCAA disqualifying him from playing. Theคำถามที่พบครั้งแรกในการใช้ภาษาอังกฤษคือ numbers one to ten.
