Learning time for parent, child

Children’s Hour not just for children

by Stephen Awoyosi

“Children’s Hour” at UAH is not really just one hour long. In fact, on October 17, 1987, which was ‘Craft Day’, it lasted well over two hours. It was not a deliberate plan by the program coordinators to extend the duration of their activity that day; it was the activity itself that generated so much involvement that it riveted the participants to their places. It is not so, that the activities planned for the hour are overly elaborate, or unusual; rather their very embracing ordinariness and expected down-to-earthiness is what makes participants in the weekly program feel comfortable and almost completely at ease with it. Of course, from time to time, the not-so day-to-day occurs. For instance, on “Career Day” the children at Huntsville was invited, along with some professional careers people, to talk to the children, and meet at the University Center. There is something else about “Children’s Hour.” It is not, again, really for just children. It was conceived to create a forum for both children and parents to further interact – in a different setting from home, and with other children and parents. The fun activities have developed such that sometimes, parents show as much enthusiasm and have as much fun as the children. At times it is possible to observe boys and girls as they walk in hand-in-hand with parents. Soon the children seat themselves and start to work away, say, at their craft activity; and the mother stands, still, beside the table, handbags still slung over shoulder, and watches her beloved(s) at their job. A short while yet and she starts to suggest a few things to the child, and then she begins to assist the child in putting his material together. In the end any factor that would distinguish parents from children (handbags are swung aside by now) as to involvement is completely lost.

Children’s Hour is sponsored by the University Center. Three years ago the program was started by Brenda Dixon, a staff of the University of Alabama in Huntsville. The idea was based on similar programs that ran in some other universities in the country. Now, at UAH, it runs concurrently with the regular school year.

The current coordinator of the program is Tina Stoner, a Marketing senior at UAH. Stoner explains that the program, though originally developed for UAH students and employees and their young children, is open to the general public. “The idea was to bring both parents and children together and to provide some direct service, such as enrichment and entertainment.”

There has been a significant increase in participation this year, with sometimes more than a hundred children and parents taking part. Information about the program, she explained, is dispersed early in the quarter by sending mail-outs to all students (at least 25 years old) and to faculty and other staff. Some information is also placed in the University Center Update.

Perhaps the key concept behind this program is that, while the University Center plans a lot of activities for the general student body, those who have children cannot sometimes fully derive the benefits, with their families and particularly their children, of some of these activities. Thus the idea of an organized activity toward this objective was pursued.

Stoner, a native of Huntsville, is an associate engineer on educational leave from the marketing department of Intergroup Corporation. She is also Special Events Director for the University Center for the current year. “Last year I expressed interest in the Children’s Hour program, and became an assistant to Gail Frasher, the coordinator at the time.” For her, it has been a positive step, “Through coordinating this program, I have improved my interpersonal skills and developed a broader organizational skill.” In addition she has helped, so far, to keep a program running that is useful in integrating the school, the student or staff, and their family.

Local students take advantage of ROTC program

by Art Ray

Military Science are now being offered at UAH. ROTC is a program by which an undergraduate student may prepare to receive a service commission upon graduation and will be given his commission at a higher rank than non-ROTC college graduates. This, of course, is the reward for two years of Military Science class and regular military drilling, which gives the officer candidate a better background than a non-ROTC candidate.

Puckett and Hawkins both intend to stay in Regular Army service when they graduate. Puckett was in the 82nd Airborne as a sergeant during the October 1983 invasion of Grenada, and he is looking forward to getting his commission and being an officer. Howerton, who is a Mechanical Engineer major, is working through the Department of Army Science and Engineering program. He presently co-op with MOCOM.

Campus police offer safety tips for housing residents

It is important for everyone to take precautions against assaults, and avoid danger by:

- keeping your apartment doors locked at all times,
- not opening your door for strangers,
- not leaving your apartment door unlocked for someone planning to come by later.

Local educators take part in space course

by Lori Grimwood
for The Exponent

Local educators Ms. Sally Jane York, Ms. Diane Showers and Ms. Pam Holder recently took part in a unique experience—The Teachers’ Space Orientation Course. The course is offered jointly by UAH and the Alabama Space and Rocket Center’s U.S. Space Academy. Ms. Holder is Associate Professor of Nursing at UAH. Ms. Showers is a Huntsville teacher and Ms. York is an elementary teacher in Anniston.

The first of its kind, the accredited course offers teachers an introduction to space-related subjects and techniques suitable for integration into the classroom. Educators gained hands-on experience with the space program and over a dozen simple experiments that can be duplicated in their classrooms to demonstrate complex, space-related ideas.

“We’re giving educators space and science related material to stimulate interest in mathematics, sciences and high technology,” said Phil Gentry, the Space Academy’s news bureau director. “This is needed by students who plan to go into engineering and other technical occupations.”

In-depth lectures, conducted by professionals in the nation’s top space training facility, explored such topics as holography, space, plasma physics, rocketry and robotics.

Ms. Holder, Ms. York, and Ms. Showers trained in Space Academy’s Space Shuttle Orbiter and Mission Control mockups. The final activity was a four-hour simulated shuttle mission, requiring the “astronaut-in-training” to perform extravehicular activities in space suits, conduct experiments in the weightless environment of Space Lab and Space Station, and direct the launch and Earth return from Mission Control.

NASA engineers, original members of Dr. Werner von Braun’s rocket team, UAH researchers and corporate professionals composed the faculty. Guest speakers ranged from former and current astronauts to payload specialists currently preparing experiments for future Shuttle missions.

Gilbert, Peters win $8000 fellowship award

Mechanical Engineering Professor John A. Gilbert and one of his graduate students, Bruce Peters, attended the ASNT (American Society for Nondestructive Testing) Conference and Quality Testing Show held last month in Atlanta, Georgia. Mr. Peters presented a technical paper entitled, “Laser Excitation Through Fiber Optics for Detection of Surface Flaws.” The paper describes a method to detect flaws in structural panels without having to remove them, as has been done in the past. It involves the use of lasers and fiber optics to generate waves along the panel. In the future a fiber optic probe will then be used to pick up the waves and determine where the flaws are.

“This will be a big help to the Airline Industry in the testing of engine parts,” says Mr. Peters. NASA is currently considering funding the continuation of this project.

At the Awards Banquet following the conference, Professor Gilbert and Mr. Peters were presented with the 1987 ASNT Fellowship Award, a cash award of $8,000. The winner of this award is chosen from among participants nationwide. Mr. Peters intends to use these funds in completing thesis requirements towards his doctorate degree at UAH.

“It is our hope that the prestige of this award will draw students into the program to develop other techniques for nondestructive testing,” Peters said.

CPPO sponsors Science Information Career Day

The Career Planning and Placement Office, together with the College of Science, will sponsor the second annual Science Career Information Day on Wednesday, Nov. 4, 1987 in the University Center from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There will be displays with information pertaining to career opportunities for each College of Science major and information on related professional organizations. In addition, there will be displays with information on salaries, job search, interviewing techniques, resume writing and dressing for success.

There will be ongoing workshops on job search techniques, resume writing and interviewing. You may sign up for mock interviews before November 4 by calling 895-6612 or by coming to Room 212 of the University Center. This program is beneficial to all College of Science students whether you need career planning, exploration of career opportunities, or degree or non-degree job placement.

College of Science students or any student interested in a science major are invited to a reception between 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the University Center Deli. The reception will provide students with the opportunity to meet and talk with deans, faculty and other students from within the College of Science. Immediately following the reception, from 1 - 2 p.m. there will be a panel discussion by professionals from within each of the College of Science disciplines.

Dear Editor:

Come on Stephen guy, don't be a lizard!

With reference to letter from Stephen A. Willihite

Come on Stephen guy, don't be a lizard. The U.S. Media (radio, TV, newspapers, movies, magazines and books) is a complete propaganda machine. The message is consistent: Pro-Israel, anti-Arab, anti-white U.S., anti-white Germany, and anti-white South Africa.

Larry Harris
P.S. Watch carefully the media's treatment of Ginnasberg.

Dear Editor:

I live in campus housing. I'm scared...

I live in campus housing. I'm scared, frightened, and very concerned. I am a church-going Christian. Over the past several months there has been talk about a satanic cult which has formed on campus. I didn't think much of it until I received a formal introduction. Last Sunday, about 11:30 p.m. I heard a knock at my door. I opened it, and there was a potato, with my name carved on it. There were pins sticking out of it. I didn't think anything of it until Monday morning when I went to my car. There was a note sitting on the front seat, from the cult, naming me a member. The name of the cult was the Quota System (anti-white U.S.) must be kept intact.

The Sam Donaldson/Andy Muller types are allowed only as long as they trumpet the message: pro-Israel, anti-Arab, anti-white U.S., anti-white Germany, and anti-white South Africa.

Larry Harris

"Hata Kimba." What bothers me even more is that my car was locked. I've asked some friends about it and they also have heard about the cult. This is not funny at all, and I don't think it is a joke. I wrote this letter because I feel there was a need to say something. I'm sure many others who read The Exponent have heard about this. I am not an isolated case. What has happened to UAH and what can we do? We must write to defeat this foe.

Very Concerned

P.S. If I'll hear anything else I'll notify you. I can't give you my name for fear of reprisals.

Unusual activities fill Homecoming Week

-Sidewalk Chalking
-Hockey Hot Legs
-"Pencil Guessing"
-Banner competition

by James E. Spain
intern reporter

This year's Homecoming will bring many unusual activities to the UAH campus during the week of Nov. 9-14. Explaining the earlier Homecoming date, Tina Stoner, who is in charge of the activities, said, "Because of weather conditions and because of the more traditional time to have Homecoming... they moved it back." Throughout Homecoming week, students will be able to participate in the ACE Pencil Count, in which the person who comes closest to guessing the number of pencils in the box wins a gift certificate to the University Bookstore.

Another feature of Homecoming week is the Hockey Hot Legs Competition between the five senior hockey players. Pictures of these players' legs will be displayed and students will vote by putting a penny in the containers to vote for a player. Any other coin put in the containers counts as votes against a player. For example, a nickel is five votes against, a dime is ten votes against and a quarter is 25 votes against. Proceeds from the Hot Legs Competition will go to CHI-HO.

"The guy who has the best legs will get some sort of prize," said Stoner. "We know what it is but we just don't want to tell just yet."

On Tuesday, November 10, the sidewalk chalking competition will take place on the front sidewalk of the University Center. Chalk will be provided and the winner will receive a pizza party. Judging will be at 5:00 Tuesday afternoon.

Banners will go up between 3 and 5 p.m. on Friday, November 13. Rules and regulations for the banner competition can be picked up at the UC Information Desk. The winners of this contest will also receive a pizza party. There will also be a pep rally in the Spragins Hall gymnasium on Friday night from 6 to 7 p.m. The Cheerleaders and the Athletic Department will help to coordinate this activity. Free shakers will be given out and a spirit competition will be held. Following the pep rally, there will be a caravan to the Von Braun Civic Center for the hockey game against the University of Windsor.

During the Homecoming hockey game on Saturday, November 14, the Homecoming King and Queen will be announced as will the winners of the Pencil Count, Hot Legs and banner competitions. The Homecoming Dance will be at 10:30 p.m. in the West Exhibit Hall of the VBCC. Tickets are $3 for singles and $5 for couples. The band Telluride will perform and there will be a cash bar. Students must have IDs to get their drinks and the number of drinks may be limited.

"We're getting a lot of food and a band, so we hope there's going to be a good turnout," Stoner said.

For additional information about Homecoming activities, call Stoner at 895-6428.

Your Horoscope

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) This will be a very tempting week for you in terms of burning up your credit cards. It would be wise to resist these temptations and keep a close watch on your wallet. There is some travel in your stars concerning business.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) There may be some tension this week with your mate, but it will be very minimal, so don't spend too much time worrying. Someone at work is eyeing on your job, but you have no reason to worry. Just be aware.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) It's high time to prioritize your activities and get on a regular schedule. You'll accomplish more and won't have to work so hard in the long run. A minor disagreement clears up by week's end.

Moon Children (June 21 to July 22) Although business meetings are somewhat of a disappointment this week, some goals will be accomplished, so take heart. The weekend looks to be full of fun and surprises.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22) A family member seems to be in a disagreeable mood this week, but just batten down the hatches and weather this storm. You'll soon find out what's troubling this person and will be able to clear things up. Travel is favored, so take advantage.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) While love ones are not in accord concerning finances this week, good news soon comes to dispel those clouds. Take some time this weekend to attend to some neglected household chores. It would be good to spruce up before the holidays.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have little patience this week with a loved one. However, as the week unwinds, you will find more harmony and romance, so hide your time. A family tie is in trouble and needs guidance from you. Assess the situation, but don't actively interfere.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) An irksome problem at work will be seen through with tenacity and wisdom. Others will see this and respect you for it. What appears to be impossible is accomplished, and rewards soon result. It is wise to investigate an investment idea.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) While the beginning of the week is full of strife with family members, you can all benefit from this. Everyone's been talking, but no one's been listening. Take time alone to sort this out, and by week's end, all will run smoothly.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) You're champing at the bit to accomplish your goals concerning your career, but this is not the time to plunge ahead. Remember that these things do take time and patience. Family members ask your help with a problem.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Business meetings are not going as you anticipated, so negotiate wisely. Advice comes from a close friend whose observations are right on the mark. Take heed. The week will end on a more positive note.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) This is a good time to assess your personal appearance and perhaps to revamp your wardrobe. Not only will you look better, you'll feel better about yourself as well. Financial matters are favored this week.

Flick Picks: Barfly and Weeds reviewed

by Ronn Fredrickson
King Features Syndicate

“Barfly” - Finally, Faye Dunaway, one of the most talented actresses of King Features Syndicate, gets a chance to shine. In this film, she and Mickey Rourke, who portrays a “beat” writer, cling together to combat loneliness against a setting of sleazy bars. While this may not sound overly exciting, these two terrific actors really carry off the movie. ()

“Weeds” - I am a dyed-in-the-wool Nick Nolte fan and have been charming at the bit to see what he would turn up in next. In this offering, he portrays a man who has been sentenced to life in prison. While there, he decides to become a playwright and establishes a theatrical troupe. While this may sound like a real yewner, it’s most certainly not. This film is action-packed and exciting, as well as inspiring. ()

“Whales of August” - At long last, the movie we’ve been waiting for. It stars Bette Davis, Lilian Gish, Vincent Price and Ann Sothern. The cast alone should be enough to cause cinema buffs to go running straight to their local theaters to catch this film. It is about two elderly sisters who live on an island off the coast of Maine. The time is the 1950s and the two are facing their waning years. There is much to be learned here, and nothing is executed in a maudlin manner. I strongly urge you to take this one in. It will probably be one of the best movies you’ll ever see this year. (*)

Soccer team opens season

Black Bears soundly defeat Chargers

by Damon Jones
sports reporter

On Friday, Oct 30, and Sunday, Nov. 1, the UAH Hockey Team opened their season against the University of Maine with two losses. The first game against Maine ended in a 2-8 loss, and the second ended in a 2-9 loss.

But for the Chargers, those two losses are nothing to feel bad about. The team played with speed and intensity against the fourth ranked Black Bears and showed that they plan on taking their new Division I status seriously.

"We've started off this season with a young team and played a highly competitive team," said UAH Head Hockey Coach Doug Ross. "We had the potential to beat Maine, as could be seen in the first period mark in both games. We just didn't play to the best of our ability. We still have high hopes for a competitive and successful season," Ross added.

"Our team played pretty well considering it was the first week we were on the ice," said Jim Goonan, a red-shirt transfer from Upsala College in New Jersey. "Maine had already been playing and had the experience that made a difference."

Members of the Black Bear team had favorable comments about the Chargers. Mike McHugh, the left wing in the powerful Maine first line said of Sunday's game, "It wasn't really an 8-2 game. They have some good recruits like Bryan Moller. They can compete with a lot of Division I schools."

Maine, the number two squad in the nation, dominated UAH this last week. But, playing such an aggressive team so early in the season will give the Chargers a good idea of what to expect from them the opportunity to prepare for a more competitive and serious season. It's proved to be a learning, as well as developing, stage in our tactics. We didn't take the game too lightly, but we weren't prepared for so highly competitive hockey," concluded Ross. UAH will be hosting Windsor College on Nov. 13, and the entire squad has high hopes for a win.

Guest pickers fall short in sixth week of forecasting

by Kelly Baldwin

This has been an eventful week. Someone accused me of being too unimaginative in my football picks. Well, I am in first place, so I guess it could not be all that bad.

This week’s schedule is ominous. There are several key games in the SEC that make this weekend a living hell for the coaches. There is Alabama at LSU, Florida State at Auburn, Clemson at Miami, Fla., Penn St. at Maryland, and Iowa St. at Nebraska.

Jennifer Grace

I always like to see what goes on in other states besides South Carolina. All of my friends and family still live there, so I go back every week when I can.

There are several key games this week. Last Monday week the UAH Lady Parsons of Snead State. In the season opener, the Lady Parsons defeated the team (15-6), but then fell behind in the second set and lost (15-12). UAH controlled the second game and went on to defeat the team (15-6), but then fell behind in the second set and lost (15-12). UAH controlled the second game and went on to defeat the team.
