Atherine Lucy Foster Speaks at UAH Honors Forum

by Mary Wallace
reporter

Atherine Lucy Foster spoke on "Civil Rights: Then and Now" for the UAH Honors Forum on January 29.

Foster related her personal experience as the first black to attend the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa. A synopsis of her experience appears in episode two, "Fighting Back," of the PBS documentary series Eyes on the Prize.

Her theme for the talk, "If you believe it, you can achieve it," was indicative of her positive outlook on her own past and the future of civil rights.

In 1952, Foster graduated from Mills College in Birmingham, AL, with a B.A. in English and a minor in French. Foster said that a friend of hers, Polly Meyers, who had been associated with the NAACP, approached her with an invitation to attend UAT.

With the help of Meyers and Attorney Shores, also with the NAACP, Foster was accepted. Upon arriving at the University, Foster was told that there had been a mistake. Although she had acceptance letters, she was informed that Alabama state law would not allow her to attend.

Following the 1954 ruling of Brown vs. the Board of Alabama, Alabama could no longer bar blacks from entering public schools. Foster told how Attorney Shores contacted her again about attending. With the help of black interest groups, Foster prepared to return to the University in 1956. Unfortunately, her stay lasted less than a week.

Foster said that February 1, 1956, was her first day, and February 3, her first day of class. In the classroom, she sat alone—the only pupil in her row. She was told later that one student left because of her presence. She attended class again on February 4.

On February 5, she attended a funeral out of town and was unaware of the group organizing against her. She was later informed that the leader of this group, Leonard Wilson, had burned an effigy of the president of the University and forbade Foster to come back on Monday, February 6.

When she returned on Monday, a crowd had gathered in front of the building that held her first class. Police held back the crowd to allow Foster to enter.

She said that she was forced to go to her next class by car, but the car window was struck with a brick as soon as she entered. After driving around, the chauffeur let her off and told her to run to the building. She was hit with a rotten egg on the shoulder and chased up the stairs to her classroom. After she entered, the professor quickly locked the door.

Because it was too dangerous to leave the building, Foster stayed inside with a group of professors. She described how she had to listen to the crowd chant racist slogans until 2 p.m. Foster was finally escorted off campus by police and barely missed receiving a blow to the head from a flying brick.

That night a telegram arrived telling Foster she was excluded from classes for her safety and the safety of the other students.

Because she had not been adequately protected and because the University seemed to be bowing to the will of the mob by suspending her, Foster made a public statement concluding, "I feel the University has conspired with the mob." She was expelled for that statement.

Foster read aloud the notice she received in 1988 from the Board of Trustees of the University of Alabama stating that her expulsion had been repealed. Today, Foster is seeking a master's degree from the University on a scholarship and will graduate at the end of the summer.

Alluding to Langston Hughes's poem, she called her return to the University "the fulfillment of a dream deferred." For this reason, Foster affirmed her trust in the statement, "If you believe it, you can achieve it."

After she finished her prepared remarks, she received questions from the crowd. When asked if she had ever met Vivian Malone, the first black to successfully integrate UAT in 1963, she said, "Yes, we met and promised to keep in touch. I kid her and say that I am Moses and she is Joshua."

Replying to a question about her hopes for the civil rights movement in the future, Foster said, "I would like to see it catapult again. If we don't spark something, we will go backwards instead of forwards. We still don't understand each other."

Foster's lecture was presented in cooperation with Black History Month. The next event for Black History Month will be a discussion with the Honorable Reuben Anderson, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, State of Mississippi, on February 8, in RH419.

The "Machine" Strikes Back at UAT

by Marian Delaney Sampson
editor

On Monday, January 28, UAT student newspaper, The Crimson White carried several articles on the "Machine," Theta Nu Epsilon. The articles listed the machine's influence on SGA elections and activities. The paper also published an editorial that declined to endorse any of the four candidates for SGA president, though it did say that the editorial board had voted 6-6 to support machine candidate Trey Boston. The editorial went on to say that Boston was "the most experienced candidate of the four" and had solid plans for what he hopes to accomplish." It then proceeded to list the short-comings of the other three candidates.

This issue of the Crimson White was taken from the paper's distribution boxes and dumped in various dumpsters and recycling bins at UAT. Boston won the election with 65% of the vote cast.

UAT Police Chief Steve Tucker is quoted in the January 30 paper as saying that the papers cannot technically be referred to as "stolen property" because they are free to the students.

In a telephone interview with the exponent, George W. Arnold, Crimson White editor, said that about 4000 copies of the paper had been disposed of. He said that though Boston won the election with 65 percent of the votes cast, last year the machine-backed candidate won with 80 percent of the vote.

Arnold said, "I did not expect this story to affect the election. I am disappointed that only 25 percent of our student body showed up to vote."

Arnold added, "The Crimson White is not free. Every student pays a three dollar subscription to the paper. Removing the papers denied the students what was theirs."

In addition, he said, "I have no particular problem with a political organization that's all Greek, but what I have a problem with is its underground and its secret."

This story was quickly picked up by the Alabama media. An Associated Press story in the January 30 Huntsville Times quoted former Public Service Commissioner Jim Ziegler as saying the same thing happened in 1968 and other times when the paper ran exposes of the machine. According to Ziegler many Alabama politicians were machine-backed SGA presidents at UAT.

The January 31 Birmingham Post-Herald featured a cartoon showing a pipeline running from Tuscaloosa to Montgomery full of sewage.

Auburn....Other universities are envious of us."

Harwell informed the exponent that he said, "We do not have a financial crisis, we have a financial problem...we are within striking distance of Auburn and we have passed Tuscaloosa."

Editor Sampson replies, "If I have misquoted Dr. Harwell, I apologize and plead poor hearing due to old age."

Dr. Lundquist Speaks at SEDS Luncheon

by Sean Chenoweth

Dr. Charles Lundquist, associate vice president of research at UAH, spoke at the Space Week luncheon. His message was about space exploration and education at UAH.

Dr. Lundquist started by saying, "everything we do in space is exploration." Space exploration and literacy is helping science advance, Lundquist added. He also said that although engineering is a big part of the space program all college disciplines are involved. Other space related programs, according to Lundquist, include the Medical school's program for Space Life Sciences. Business and management are an even bigger part of the space program.

Lundquist described distribution and concentration as two approaches to space education. UAH uses the distribution approach to encourage and stimulate each college. The UAH Space Initiative adds a space dimension to each college's program, but it does not limit them to space topics. This is what Dr. Lundquist means by distribution education. The Art Department has had space art displays. The school of Nursing has had two conferences on health care in space. At present, the History Department has a $611,000 research grant to write the history of MSFC as an institution. Lundquist said, "These are all fine examples of distribution of space education."

Other schools around the country have to be satisfied by talking about space, but at UAH there is an opportunity to participate. Experienced students have an advantage in the job market, Dr. Lundquist said. The co-op program is another great way to participate in space related activities. SEDS is building a satellite and working on a GAS (Get Away Special) project, that will fly on the space shuttle. There are also summer programs at NASA and the Army.

Dr. Lundquist said he is always available and open to anyone in any department looking for a space related topic to work on.

Dr. Lundquist's positive and optimistic message closed with this quote, "UAH has evolved into a distributed space education school offering its students a chance to participate in the space program."

Correction/Clarification

Dr. Kenneth Harwell has said exponent editor Marian Sampson misquoted him in the January 31 exponent.

Her notes have Harwell saying, "I do not view it as a problem but as an opportunity to look at what we're doing and to emphasize our strengths," and, "we're doing very well...in the competitive research arena we've passed Tuscaloosa and

staff report

A group of UAH students, staff, and faculty went to Washington, D.C. the weekend of January 25-27 to join 300,000 people demonstrating against the Persian Gulf War.

Molly Pettis, senior Sociology major said, "We left Friday for the Saturday peace march and rally at the Mall."

Pettis said, "We marched past the White House and attended the rally on the ellipse."

Among the speakers Pettis heard was an army officer's wife and an army officer.

Pettis has been involved with the local peace groups. She has demonstrated at the federal building and participated in the candlelight vigil at the Madison County Courthouse. She has also attended the Gulf Crisis lectures sponsored at UAH.

Pettis said she is participating in the demonstrations for peace because "I believe that violence is wrong. We have so many options that have not been explored. Our government tends to go for quick actions."

She said, "I do not agree with what Hussein has done, but I think the issues in the Middle East are too complex. We don't totally understand their cultures, boundaries and issues of nationality. I'm trying to learn about that."

"I have family and friends in Saudi Arabia," she said, "I am not opposing the human-ness of these people and their decisions. I am opposing the system that makes war. I have driven around campus with peace signs on my car and have gotten dirty looks. I wish that the people who support it [war] and the people who don't support it could talk calmly. But that does not seem likely right now."

"There are a lot of issues involved in the Persian Gulf War," Pettis said, "economic, ecological - I don't know everything about them, but they need to be discovered and explored before we dedicate a whole nation of people to death."

The Faculty Senate

staff report

The faculty Senate met on January 31, 1991. Items discussed included the appointment of an acting chair for the Finance committee.

Dr. Jack Walker reporting on the Campus Planning Committee was asked "What are we doing about additional parking places on campus." He began his response by saying that a university president had told him that there were three universal problems on all campuses, "More parking for the faculty, more sports for the alumni and more sex for the students."

In the rest of his report Walker gave the following schedule for the completion of buildings under construction on campus: Materiel Science, April 1991; Optics, August, 1991; MS-Optics Utilities, March, 1991; Aero physics facility, February 1991, and the new residence hall, August of 1991.

After the committee reports the Senate discussed two house bills, 212 and 213. 212 was tabled, and the Senate adjourned while 213 was under discussion.

Dr. Philip Austin, UAS Chancellor, Elected to Alabama Power Board

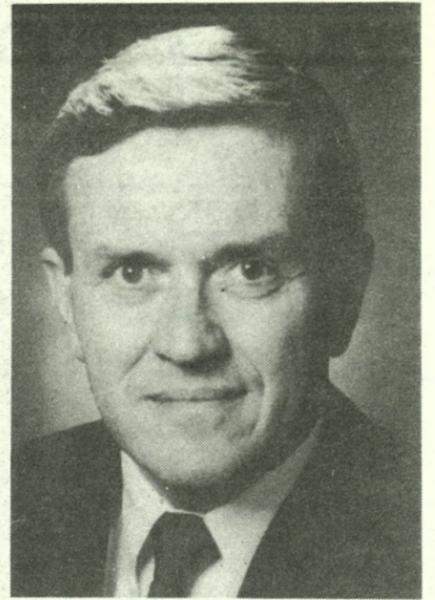

by Chris Conway
Alabama Power

University of Alabama Chancellor Dr. Philip Austin was elected January 25 to Alabama Power Company's Board of Directors, according to Elmer B. Harris, president and chief executive officer.

Dr. Austin holds a BS and MS degree from North Dakota State University and a MA and PhD degree from Michigan State University. He serves as Chancellor of the University of Alabama System.

From 1974 to 1977 he was Health Education and Welfare Deputy Assistant Secretary for Education in Washington, D.C. During the later part of this assignment, he also served as Acting Assistant Secretary for Education.

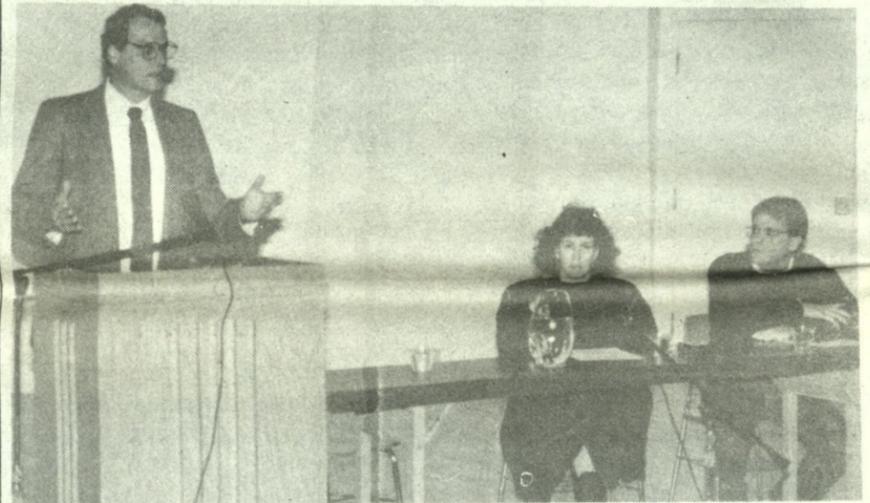

Prior to his appointment to the University of Alabama System, Dr. Austin was President of Colorado State University, located in Ft. Collins. He was also Chancellor of the Colorado State University System.

Middle East War Financing Unclear

Sean Chenoweth

The Sociology Department and various other departments have organized a lecture series on the middle east war. Dr. Niles Schoening of the Department of Economics and Finance and Dr. Mary Dittmar of the Department of Psychology both spoke Wednesday night.

Dr. Schoening discussed the economics of the mid-east war and how wars of the past were financed. He began the lecture by praising the financial plan of WW II. He said consumer spending actually went up and inflation was held at a minimum. WWII was financed through various efforts. War bonds were encouraged to be bought which was a source of public support for the war. Dr. Schoening said that American industry quickly made the transition after WWII ended.

He also spoke about the politics of the war. Schoening said Vietnam was only planned to last six months, but as we all know it lasted ten long years. Our present administration said the mid-east war will be short. Now that the video game portion of the war is ending and ground troops are stirring the Bush administration is now saying there is no guarantee on how long the mid-east war will last. In April of 1917 the U.S. entered WWI. Schoening said the troops were planned to be home by Christmas. They came home three Christmases later in 1919.

Our own civil war was poorly financed by the Union forces. America went into a depression just after the Civil war ended. Dr. Schoening said the U.S. has no financial strategy for the mid-east war except for contributions from Saudi Arabia, Japan and Germany. Support for a baffling $600 million dollar a day operation in the middle east is complicated and demanding for both burdened tax payers and generous allied contributors. Schoening suggested a one year surtax to support the war which calls for sacrifices.

Dr. Mary Lynne Dittmar of the Department of Psychology spoke about U.S. energy policy. Her opening remarks were criticism on the U.S. Government's part for not having a cohesive energy policy.

Dr. Dittmar went on an environmental reminiscence track of the 70's. Pointing out a few of the infinite flaws of the Carter years. She was a bit bombastic about the shuffling of nuclear enrichment funds between Congress, Portsmouth Ohio and Oakridge Tennessee.

The next and final lecture will be Wednesday night at 8:15 in the Frances Roberts Recital Hall at UAH campus. The topic will be moral issues of the Middle East War.

Famous Americans

by Kelly Pennick
reporter

Biography of Dr. Ben Carson

Dr. Ben Carson gained world-wide recognition in 1987 for his part in the first successful separation of Siamese twins joined at the head, a procedure that took 5 months to plan and 22 hours to execute.

At 33 he became Director of Pediatric Neurosurgery at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, MD.

At Johns Hopkins he re-introduced hemispherectomies, a procedure in which half of the brain is removed. This procedure was rarely used by the medical community because of its high failure rate, but Carson revised it and as a result saved the lives of 30 children.

It is estimated that 95 percent of the children with hemispherectomies no longer have seizures, 5 percent have occasional seizures, and more than 95 percent have improved intellectually after surgery because they are no longer bombarded with seizures and don't have to take large amounts of medication.

Hemispherectomy surgery is becoming more accepted; consequently, other hospitals now use the procedure.

It is said that Carson has done more hemispherectomies than anybody actively practicing.

ed. note: In Honor of Black History Month the exponent presents the following biographies of Black Americans.

Biography of Dr. Charles Drew

Dr. Charles Drew made great strides in medicine.

He interned at Montreal General Hospital, where he pioneered in blood research, and was on the faculty of Howard Medical College in 1935. Drew was awarded the General Education Board Fellowship to Columbia University Medical School in 1935 in order to research a specific project on the preservation of blood and its uses for transfusions.

He started the "Blood for Britain" project in 1940, which consisted of collecting dry blood plasma to be used for transfusions on the battlefield.

In 1950 Drew was killed in an auto accident. The tragedy of his death was sharpened by the irony that the segregated hospital that he was admitted to did not have any blood plasma which might have saved his life.

Recycling Makes Dollars & Sense

by Helga Thompson
reporter

The spirit of Earth Day lives on at UAH through the efforts of Dr. Michael Eley who runs the campus recycling program. He views garbage as a potential valuable commodity which can be almost entirely recyclable with proper processing.

Though presently on sabbatical until June, Dr. Eley is not resting. He checks in at his office in the Johnson Research Center and still supervises the UAH recycling program while setting up a 60 ton a day capacity garbage recycling plant, of a design developed at UAH, in Louisiana.

The patented process takes unsorted municipal garbage and separates the aluminum, ferrous metals (e.g. tin cans), plastic and glass which can then be sold to recyclers. The leftover materials are shredded and steam-sterilized which leaves non-odorous, flaky remains. This can be sold as compost for gardeners or used in further processing to produce ethanol. There is very little leftover waste, thus no need for a large scale incinerator—a nearly perfect ecological solution for garbage.

Presently, the UAH recycling system is on a much lower level. The campus program began with a $2000 grant from Dr. Padulo on Earth Day, April 1989. Ninety-six containers were purchased with the money and placed around the campus as receptacles for aluminum cans and paper. Now there are over 300 containers. The UAH program is voluntary, relying on the cooperation of both departments and individuals for its effectiveness.

Once the material is collected, it is sorted at the Johnson Research Center. Paper is separated into eight different categories, each of which is sold at various prices starting at 25 cents per 100 lbs..

UAH generates 500 to 600 tons of garbage a year. Total costs for disposing of a ton of garbage is $70. The average recycled garbage mix per ton is worth at least $60. Multiply that by 500, which equals $30,000 income from garbage! UAH is presently recycling only 35% of its waste.

Cooperation from individuals is necessary. Place aluminum cans in the marked containers, not the garbage cans. In the library and computer rooms, there are special containers for white and computer paper. It only takes a few extra seconds to use the correct container.

Also each department can separate its papers and cans. The Corp of Engineers on campus is doing an excellent job in helping the program by breaking down and stacking its corrugated cardboard boxes for pick-up. If you have any questions, or would like help to set up a more efficient recycling system in your office or department, call the Johnson Research Center at 895-6361.

Obviously, recycling makes sense not only ecologically, for the welfare of our planet, but also makes economics sense and dollars. Bringing money into the university could positively affect tuition and wages. With Dr. Eley's supervision and everyone cooperating, UAH can make the recycling program an even greater success and an example to the community.

Health Check

by Donna K. Thompson, MSN, CR.P
UAH Wellness Center

Donna K. Thompson

Q. Why do they make flavored condoms?

A. Since semen in the mouth is considered definitely not safe in the spread of the AIDS virus, one should use a barrier with oral-genital contact. Therefore, makers of latex condoms are now making flavored ones to reduce the chances of the spread of AIDS through this method of sexual activity.

Q. What is Premenstrual Syndrome?

A. PMS refers to a combination experienced by many women during their menstrual cycle, usually just before the menses (period) begins. The types and intensity of symptoms vary greatly. Symptoms include: water retention, headaches, cramps, tender breast, tension, skin out breaks, and depression-(several women have been exonerated from murder charges because of PMS). Women need to keep track of their cycles and notice any patterns. Diet, exercise, relaxation, massage and some prescription medications have been used in the treatment.

Q. What is the difference between the common cold and flu?

A. Both the common cold and influenza are viral infections. There are three types of flu: A,B, and C. Type A acts like a cold but is much more virulent-you feel very sick. Symptoms include: headache, high fever, cough, congestion, muscular aches, and fatigue. You will feel real bad, probably won't make it out of bed; usually takes 10 or more days to resolve. Type B acts like a cold and is hard to distinguish. Type C rarely has any major symptoms. Some self care guidelines are: avoid aspirin, rest, drink plenty of fluids, keep warm and use other measures for colds like Mom's Chicken Soup. If your symptoms worsen, notify your primary care physician or the Wellness Center.

Q. What should my college medicine chest contain?

A. 1. Antacids-Tums or Roloids-for stomach upset, indigestion, or heartburn.

2. Antibacterial creams-Polysporin or neosporin for minor wounds or cuts.

3. Antihistamines and decongestants-Benadryl, Sudafed, or Contact- allergies, colds.

4. Antifungal creams-Desenex or Tinacten-athletic's foot or jock itch.

5. Anti-inflammatory medications-Cortaid-skin rashes, oral-advil (Ibuprofen) to reduce inflammation.

6. Constipation aids-Metamucil or Milk of Magnesia.

7. Cough suppressants-Robitussin-DM

8. Diarrhea medication-Kaopectate, Immodium

9. Disinfectants-Hydrogen Peroxide, Betadine-wound cleansers.

10. Eye drops-Murine or Visine-eye irritation or bloodshot eyes.

11. Fever, headache, and muscle ache medication-aspirin or ibuprofen for inflammation. Tylenol or equivalent-if you suspect the flu.

12. Nasal decongestants-Afrin-stuff nose due to allergies or colds.

13. Nausea and vomiting-Emetrol.

U.S. Army's Spirit of Nursing Award

news release

The U.S. Army's Spirit of Nursing Award winners are being selected by over 1500 accredited nursing schools throughout the nation this month. This prestigious award is given to the student who best demonstrates outstanding achievement and commitment to the nursing profession.

The award is given in cooperation with the National Student Nurses' Association (NSNA). The recipients from each of the participating schools will compete for a national award to be presented in April at the NSNA's annual convention in San Antonio, Texas.

The award's selection is based on community and professional involvement, leadership experience, and academic excellence. The program is designed to promote excellence among nursing students and to encourage professionalism in this well-respected field.

A Modest Proposal

Undergraduate proposes solution to UAH parking problems

by Jim Puckett
for the exponent

No one would deny that there is a parking problem at UAH. It is apparent to any of us who have lunch on campus that we get to burn off the calories of our Entree during the trek back to our car at Madison Square Mall. The location of the new dorm promises to aggravate this problem even more.

And it has also been brought to the attention of the student body that this campus suffers from Grade Inflation. Lazy, inept instructors are hiding the fact that they cannot teach by giving a disproportionate number of A's and B's to undeserving students. Never mind the notion that anyone who is willing to attempt UAH already has earned an A for effort - these people are ruining the credibility of our degrees by handing out worthless pieces of paper to semi-literates! Before long, a degree from the University of Alabama in Huntsville will be laughed out of countenance by any respectable post-graduate institution, such as Teledyne Brown.

Therefore I would like to make the following modest proposal: that the University impose strict grading codes on the faculty, and in such a manner as to weed out both the lower fraction of the student body and those members of the faculty who hope to hold onto their positions through the useless device of reporting higher grades, as though this would indicate someone was learning something.

This strict regulation of grading would also, as a useful side effect, solve the parking problem for all time.

The policy should be as follows: As there are five grades possible - A,B,C,D, and F and as the grade 'C' is assigned for average performance, then each and every class body should receive final grades in the proportion of 1/5 to each letter grade.

In other words, if there are 20 students in a class, one-fifth should receive an A, one-fifth a B, on down to the ignorant and unwilling lowest fifth, who would receive an F.

We have all heard of the 'Grading Curve', but this device continues to place almost all of the students in the above-average classifications. By definition, one-half of anything is below average! In this, an institution of higher learning, we should be able to apply so simple a law to our grading system.

This is the stone with which we will kill two birds...Consider a freshman class of two thousand, starting in the fall quarter. Given the following postulates: (1)Two-fifths of the student body will receive D's and F's; (2)any student with a D average will remain on academic probation until his grades improve; (3)his grades cannot improve, since with every passing quarter we rid ourselves of the lowliest two-fifths - BUT CONTINUE TO GRADE EVERYONE AGAINST A C AVERAGE; (4)then we will shortly achieve a steady state in which the number of students registering for successive quarters reaches a ratio of three-fifths.

So our steady-state freshman class will have the following year: Registering in the fall, 2000; returning for winter 3/5 * 2000 = 1200; returning for spring 3/5 * 3/5 * 2000 = 720; and passing the spring quarter 432.

After a first year like that, everyone will probably take summer quarter off.

In this way we solve the parking problem - by the very nature of the function Sb(t) (a function of the student body with respect to time)= StudentBodyInitial * (3/5)^(number of quarters) we have the following table for each fall quarter: Freshman, 2000; Sophomores, 432; Juniors, 93; Seniors, 20; and the total students on campus, 2545.

In the above calculations, it was necessary to leave out certain fractional students. This however allows us a more exact approximation, as it is doubtful if a fraction of a student would be able to survive the curricula in our grade-deflated system.

There are also some more benefits to this system. Those of you who have gone through the lengthy process of applying for graduation will no doubt be pleased to learn that, under this regime, only four students will receive a bachelors degree each year! The savings in administrative overhead would be overwhelming - not to mention the troublesome caps and gowns.

Of course, this notion does cause our graduate school some problems. I can't find a way to graduate more than 0.864 of a student with a Master's degree, that being the number of seniors who could last the next three quarters(full time) at our 3/5 ratio. But perhaps some means might be found to 'overlap' our grading system, so that we could give out three Master's every four years (plus almost half of a student left over, for sales tax.)

I hope those reading this modest proposal will give the matter the thought that it deserves. In the past we have fired faculty for the crime of grade inflation. One might be tempted to assume that, with the stringent admission requirements and as-yet unsullied reputation that UAH currently enjoys, only intelligent, hard-working students would even consider this University and that therefore a C student at UAH is probably above average anywhere.

But such thoughts, no doubt well intended, are smeared with the stink of sentimentality. We cannot back down. Shoulder to shoulder, we must fight the evil of grade inflation, until those of us who survive will have a good chance of finding a parking spot at Madison Hall.

"...one of the few heroes of my childhood."

by Marian Delaney Sampson
editor

It is not often that a person gets to sit in the same room with a legend. The first time Autherine Lucy Foster tried to enroll at UAT, I was a second grade student in St. Louis wearing "I Like Ike!" buttons pinned on my sweaters by my father. (If my mother saw me they were of course removed and replaced with Stevenson buttons).

The second time she tried, I was a 12-year old seventh grader bidding good-bye to by Missouri friends before moving to Biloxi, Mississippi. The deep south was a new experience for me. I had lived in Indiana, West Virginia and Missouri by this time.

The first thing that struck me on my way to Mississippi was the service station rest rooms. I could not understand why there were three - "Ladies," "Gentlemen" and "Colored." My finely honed sense of incongruity acted up and I kept trying to insist loudly that if they were segregated by sex and race then there should be four. My mother, with her finely honed sense of self-preservation, kept trying to shush me up.

The next problem for me occurred with the buses. The last seat on the public bus stretching all of the way under the window was the status seat for female pre-adolescents in St. Louis. I only rode there once in Mississippi. The conductor was not civil to me.

It never made sense to me that I was bussed clear around Keesler Air Force Base past a perfectly good school to one that was for "my race." After all, St. Louis had integrated in the early '50's. Nor could my best friend and I go off of the base in each other's company - that just did not make sense to me.

A few years later (1960) in Syracuse, New York, a friend and I were working at a "Negro Day Nursery." She had a ten year old black child (sent from New York City to the country for fresh air !!) visiting and we went downtown to the local five - and - ten for lunch. For about a half of an hour, I could not understand why the waitresses were serving people to the right and left of us and ignoring us except to glance over and mutter and call the manager.

Then it was 1961 and summer in San Angelo, Texas. Hamburgers at the Greyhound bus station were served to "whites" at the counter and blacks and Spanish at a side door. I could not understand any of this.

All of these events just happened. Slowly, somewhere along the way, I began to get more and more indignant about the way people of color were being treated and by 1963, I was ready for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. (It's leader, Stokely Carmichael, almost created the women's movement single-handedly but that is another story).

I did not need to see the TV images of Autherine Lucy Foster and the rioting in Tuscaloosa to remember how it was.

She was one of the few heroes of my childhood.

I was surprised in many ways to actually sit in a room and listen to her speak. Her gentleness and good humour, her intelligence and strength and her perseverance and courage are inspiring - as is her willingness to forgive.

She did not seem to feel the outrage that has always fueled me. I always knew that I would not have survived my pigmentation at birth had made me black. I wondered at the questioner who asked Foster if she wasn't naive prior to enrolling at UAT. How could a black woman survive in Alabama in the 1950's by being naive about what would happen if she enrolled at UAT?

There is a point to this editorial and I will now try to make it.

Black History Month is not just for Blacks. The Black struggle is part of our history as Americans. Much of the history of people of color and women has not been written down. American History that only deals with the white male experience (and that usually in combat) is an incomplete picture of what this country is and is about.

February is a particularly good month to discover American History. We can learn about a side of our past that has been hushed for a long time - too long. Please consider attending one of the lectures/activities associated with Black History Month. You might be amazed at the things you don't know.

The New Weekly UAH Achievement Awards!!!!

by Troy King
staff Satirist

The Donald Trump Money Management Award goes to: Former President Louis Padulo, for obvious reasons.

The Dirty Harry Traffic Enforcement Award goes to: The UAH Campus Police, also for obvious reasons.

The James Watt Conservation Award goes to: The various Construction crews, for making our campus beautiful.

The "I'm sorry, Do I know you?" Award goes to: Any Sorority, for snubbing anyone who isn't a Rock Star.

The "I'm sick, sick, SICK of this!" Award goes to: Marian Sampson, for her undying love and understanding of deadlines.

The "We're sorry, but we can't help you" Award goes to: University Relations, for keeping that goofy horse around.

The Government Spending Award goes to: The UAH Administration for going broke half way through December.

The "I'm right, and you're a Commie" Award goes to: Ron Byrd, ACE president, for being diligent in his "lofty" ideals.

The "GO AWAY!!!!" Award goes to: The UC Information desk staff, for their prompt, courteous service.

The Golden Dumpster Award goes to: The Cafeteria cook, for his unique approach to finding edible food. (RECYCLE!)

The "Oh my God, I'm STILL a Hippie" Award goes to: U.C. Director Steve Bruce. Welcome to the 90's, Steve.

Thanks goes to all our award recipients for making our college days a little richer and fuller. We appreciate it! Nominations for future awards may be sent to me care of Room 104UC.

Notes From The Undergrad

by Doug Brewer
news editor

The good and thoughtful people at Walt Disney World have sent us permission to use the ad below, at no cost, so that we may remind you to wear your seat belts during spring break.

According to the accompanying letter, the ad is a joint effort of the good and thoughtful people at Walt Disney World, the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) and the Department of Transportation. The actual art was done by a high school student, Rob Saunders, in Utah in 1985.

At first, my only reaction was to warn you that there was a buckled-in cartoon character out there on the road. Driving in Alabama is enough of an adventure without there being an ancient rodent, who obviously can't reach the pedals, lurking on the highways.

The letter made the rounds of the desks in the office. I didn't understand the gales of laughter coming from other members of the newspaper staff. By this time of the week most anything will set us off, so I attributed it to a case of Friday afternoon shell shock. Then they showed me a UAH academic calendar. Suddenly the irony of it all jumped into column form in my mind.

We don't get a spring break? Excuse me, but what kind of Mickey Mouse outfit is this? I don't know about anyone else, but I was not informed of this fact when I was applying for admission. Shouldn't it be on the application somewhere?

Dear hopeful student, it should say, we feel it is only fair to tell you that although we offer a fine education, new buildings, and free coffee refills, the University of Alabama-Huntsville does not provide but two days between the end of classes for the winter quarter and registration for spring quarter. You may want to consider this before you finish applying.

Two days. This isn't a spring break. It's a spring-loaded shaft. I mean, it's bad enough that we have no football team, but there's something demented about all this, you know, academic stuff.

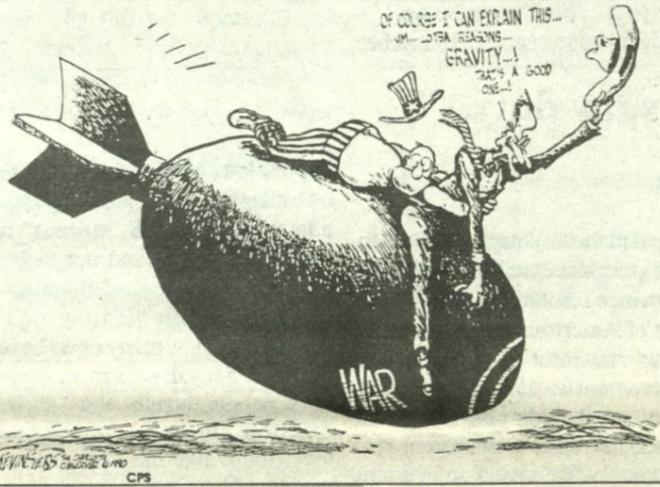

Could this be evidence of a conspiracy on the part of the administration? No, I can't believe that Those In Authority here at beautiful UAH would ever, ever do anything that did not directly benefit the students who provide them with continued employment. Perish the thought.

I don't know if we can really comprehend exactly what's going on here. The consequences are staggering. Literally several UAH students are annually deprived of the chance to waste an incredible amount of their parents' money. No Fort Lauderdale. No attending dozens of, um, physically oriented competitions. No becoming teen cruise missiles. No guaranteeing a good Christmas in Golden, Colorado. No making complete fools of themselves on MTV.

This should be addressed by a large committee, like everything else here. Someone could be appointed or elected or ordained. It is critical that something be done for those students who can't bring themselves to put this much emphasis on education, but who just want to go to college so they can have spotty memories of layoffs between sessions.

But until that happens, I guess we'll just have to spend our "spring break" in the usual way: driving around the campus trying to find a parking space before classes start again. Hopefully, thanks to the good and thoughtful people at Walt Disney World, DECA, and the DOT, we'll all remember to wear our seat belts. See you next week.

The View From the Right

by Ronald Byrd
columnist

I would like to take this opportunity to answer Dr. William R. Garstka's letter that appeared in last week's issue of the exponent regarding why we are at war and to rebut some of the untruths that appeared in his letter. Garstka stated that, "Kuwait has been a feudal state while Iraq, though clearly with strong central control by Saddam Hussein, is not far from a representative government." In reality, Saddam Hussein's Iraq is much closer to a Stalinist type dictatorship than a republic. Saddam Hussein has maintained his power by having a very small group of advisors, many of whom are his blood relatives. However, the fact that they are relatives has not stopped him from murdering some of the ones that have opposed his policies. Hussein's previous profession was as a political assassin so murdering people in cold blood is not new to him. An assassin that is the dictator of a nation and who carries out periodic purges of those who oppose him does not sound like a representative form of government to me.

Dr. Garstka does not believe that Saddam Hussein could adversely affect the worldwide price of oil. Common sense tells us that he could indeed. If the United States and other coalition members stood idly by while Saddam conquered Kuwait and Saudi Arabia we would be faced with an Iraq that controlled over 50 percent of the entire world's oil resources. If Dr. Garstka does not believe that one who controls half of the world's oil can affect the price of oil he is sadly mistaken.

The government of Kuwait is indeed a monarchy as Dr. Garstka stated, however, it is a rather benign monarchy that has brought a higher standard of living to its people than any other nation in the region. Even though it has a booming oil economy, Kuwait now earns more money from its foreign investments than it does from its oil exports. Dr. Garstka implies that one would have more freedom under Hussein's regime than under the Emir's rule. The truth is that Saddam Hussein has tortured, raped, pillaged, and murdered the people of Kuwait.

The answer to the question why we are at war is multi-faceted. The reasons that the United States is at war are many. One of the reasons that we are taking a stand is to deter future aggression by Iraq and other nations in the world that use violence as a means of increasing their power and wealth. Another reason why we are fighting is to return the tiny nation of Kuwait to its rightful rulers, just as we did in Panama. Remember, the nation of Panama held fair elections and Noriega lost, however, he maintained his power because he controlled the military. The citizens of Panama cheered American troops when we liberated that country from its dictator; I ask Dr. Garstka where were the cheering crowds in Kuwait when the Iraqis invaded? We are fighting also to protect the economic stability in this nation and other nations large and small around the world. The economies of Eastern European nations and third world nations have been the hardest hit by the recent increase in oil prices, the nations that can least afford it. However, the most compelling reason for the United States and its allies to fight is to eliminate the prospect of an Iraq with nuclear weapons in the future.

It is true that Saddam Hussein has been actively seeking to acquire nuclear capability for the last ten years. Back as early as 1983, the Israelis bombed the nuclear power facility in Iraq. Hindsight has allowed us to see what a fortunate military move this was on the part of the Israelis. We have all seen the SCUD missile attacks on Israel as well as Saudi Arabia. Missile attacks that have absolutely no military value whatsoever. One can imagine the horror that would now be occurring to our troops, the Israelis, and the Saudi Arabians if Saddam Hussein had nuclear capability. We have seen Saddam Hussein's lack of respect for human life manifested in many atrocities that he has committed over the last few months. We have seen him shoot missiles into neighborhoods of innocent civilians in Israel, we have seen him torture our downed military pilots and exploit them for propaganda purposes, he has held foreigners against their wills and used them as human shields; the list goes on and on. We need to remember the words of President George Bush when we contemplate our reasons for going to war. He stated in a speech to American troops in Saudi Arabia on Thanksgiving Day, "Each day that passes brings Saddam one day closer to realizing his goal of a nuclear weapons arsenal... And we do know this for sure: He has never possessed a weapon that he didn't use." President Bush went on to ask, "Will continued patience with Iraq help make the world vulnerable to nuclear blackmail by Saddam Hussein? And if so, is this a moral course of action?"

"..energy conservation measures are being implemented."

TO: Faculty and Staff
FROM: Joseph C. Moquin, Interim President

As part of the overall effort to reduce operating budgets throughout the University, energy conservation measures are being implemented. These measures will reduce the impact of expected increases in energy costs and save budgeted utilities dollars. The Utilities Budget for Fiscal Year 1990-91 is $1,295,000; an additional $320,000 will be required next fiscal year to cover one full year of utilities costs for the Materials Science and Optics Buildings. These buildings are currently funded for only those months of operation after construction is completed.

With the cooperation of the Colleges, steps have already been taken to reduce the scheduled hours of operation of the heating, ventilating, and air conditioning (HVAC) systems in all the academic buildings. The hours of operation for many of the computer classrooms and laboratories have been reduced. The following measures have also been implemented or are planned:

Class schedules are being adjusted to minimize the number of buildings used for evening and weekend classes.

Levels for all thermostats have been established at a maximum of 70 F for the heating season and a minimum of 76 F for the cooling season.

The use of electric space heaters is restricted to only those issued by the Physical Plant Department for use in special situations. The removal of all other space heaters is required.

The supply temperature of domestic hot water has been reduced to 120 F.

External lighting is being adjusted to remain on a maximum of 1 1/2 hours after the building occupancy schedule.

During term breaks, environmental control will be in effect only between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. A minimum of 55 F will be maintained for buildings during University holidays.

All faculty, staff, and students are requested to turn off all office, classroom, and other lights when the space is not in use.

The use of buildings after normal operating hours is discouraged. Room charges will be applied when such requests are submitted.

It is necessary that additional steps be taken to reduce the impact of rising utility costs on the University budget. Other energy cost saving measures are under consideration and the Physical Plant Department will be happy to review any suggestions. The cooperation extended so far is appreciated but the assistance of the entire UAH community is needed to make this program successful.

SGA has an Alternative to the Bookstore

To the editor,

Many of the most common complaints on the UAH campus arise from the campus bookstore. They range from "books are too expensive" to "editions change too often". There are a lot of very real problems that exist in this area, and these problems are especially frustrating to the average student because the student feels that there is nothing that he or she can do to solve them.

SURPRISE! The SGA has an alternative to the bookstore. Beginning during the last week of this quarter, students will be able to bypass the bookstore and deal directly with other students. Here is how this miracle will be accomplished:

Take a 3x5 card for each book you would like to sell, and write the following information on it (in this order, please):

- the course number for which the book is intended,
- the title and author of the book,
- the edition number,
- how much you would like to sell the book for,
- your name,
- your phone number.

Books for the same class may be placed on the same card. Students should bring their card(s) to the SGA office (room 106 of the UC) or drop them in the SGA suggestion box which is located in the UC lobby. The SGA will compile all of this information and print a list of textbooks students are trying to sell in a trading paper which will be distributed around campus. We are still working on a name for this paper, but on the suggestions that we have is "The Grass Root".

We recommend that students ask for two-thirds of the price the bookstore charges for the books you are trying to sell. This way, students would get back more than just one-half of the bookstore price, which is the price that the bookstore pays for used books. Students would also be able to buy books at a cost much lower than the price in either the campus or off-campus bookstores.

We feel that such a publication will benefit the student body in several other ways. A student who is considering taking a class will be able to discuss the class or the instructor with a student who has already had that class. Class notes can be exchanged. Possible tutors can be contacted.

It is important to remember that the SGA is providing this as a service to the student body. We can assume no responsibility for book condition, edition number, textbook changes, et cetera. It will be entirely the responsibility of the buyer and seller to work these details out. We hope, however, that this program will be of maximum benefit to the student body.

"The humor was lost..."

To the editor,

I had intended to write a humorous and sarcastic commentary about the maturity level of college students who write on bathroom walls. The humor was lost, however, when I read a phrase written in pen on a bathroom door in Roberts Hall, "Iraqi's go home."

I must admit, I never expected to see such a shallow, hostile remark anywhere on campus. The sheer ignorance and insensitivity leaves me angry and embarrassed, both for my school and my country.

People come to America to live and share in the freedom that so many Americans enjoy. The college campus epitomizes (or should epitomize) this ideal. Students and professors from various countries and cultures come even to the UAH campus. It is an opportunity and a privilege to share in the exchange of ideas and opinions - intelligent ones - that help us to broaden our minds and understand the world around us. And it demands respect. "Iraqi's go home," is neither intelligent nor respectful; it enriches no one, and it is a clear reflection of the cowardly, ignorant, and child-like mind that, unfortunately, drives great minds away from institutions such as ours.

I have my own reasons for supporting the war in the Gulf, and I believe them to be legitimate. But I also understand that there are others who have very legitimate reasons for believing the way they do. I may not agree, but it is my duty as an educated American to do my best to understand them.

What must also be considered is the moral and cultural turmoil facing Arab-Americans, Muslims, and foreign visitors from the Arab region. Think of the agony of trying to reconcile loyalty to country and loyalty to religion, or family, or culture. Think of how they feel when they see such remarks aimed at them.

I hope the author of this tasteless, thoughtless phrase will one day regret his/her action, and I hope to God that I am not alone in my disgust.

Susan Dils

"It's my duty..."

To the editor,

It's pathetic that this country has gotten to the point that groups such as the UAH SGA have to pass voice resolutions to proclaim their support of American troops. The key phrase in this statement is "have to". It should be a given that we support the patriots of our country; we shouldn't have to prove it. But unfortunately, due to the recent history of this country, the media and certain groups of citizens have forced the rest of us into this mode of thinking. We walk around proclaiming our support of the troops as if we expect a pat on the back for it. It was my impression that as citizens of this nation we owe allegiance to it. However, it seems that a large group of US "citizens" only think about their rights and not their responsibilities. Think about all of the times you've heard the phrase "It's my right, I'm an American." How many times have you ever heard "It's my duty, I'm an American"? If more people thought about their duties as American citizens, we would probably see less groups like the SGA trying to prove their loyalties. One very sad note to leave on is that the voice resolution didn't even pass unanimously.

A "lesson in civility"

To the editor:

The Jan. 30th issue of the exponent provided one of the most outstanding editorials I have ever had the privilege to read. Its meaning goes far beyond the Gulf War. I saved the page and plan to use it for future reference in my work and personal activities. I have to wonder whether or not someone 20 or 21 years old could have written a piece of such maturity. Those who realize that we are all students all of our lives will need your words.

My parents (who have requested more copies of your editorial) would like to know if you would consider submitting it to the HSV Times and HSV News for the benefit of the rest of the community. I was pleased that we all agreed on the same editorial; that says something about the effective impression of your work.

Keep it up. You and your staff are making a significant difference on our campus.

Thank you for the lesson in civility.

"...why is your indignation so selective?"

To the editor,

Your column "The View from the Right" read as a personal attack. Let me give you a view from the left in reply.

"Our cause is just..." No, this war does not even meet the just war criteria. President Bush has repeatedly refused offers to mediate. I saw him offer to have Baker (Sec'y of State) meet with Hussein anytime between Dec 15 and Jan 15. Hussein chose Jan 12. Bush then declared that date too late. I call that bad faith bargaining.

"Hanoi Jane"-Propaganda, cheap shot. "Innocent nation Israel" Israel's occupations in Palestine are subject to exactly the same sort of U.N. resolutions as Iraq's occupation of Kuwait. First come, first served?

"The only time (peaceniks) get offended is when the United States uses military force." There's a lot of truth in this. Let me explain why. First, we do not consider it to be our role to pass judgement on everybody and everything. That is to play God. Second, this is a democracy. We feel a special obligation to publicly criticize our government when it is wrong. Let us concede that Hussein is not nice: but why did we support him so long, and why did we support Battista, Somoza, Pinochet; why do we support even Hafiz Assad. There is no consistent policy, there is only demonization of our "enemy" and silence or glossing over of our "allies."

"Atrocities...against the people of Kuwait." How about atrocities against the people of El Salvador, Panama, Nicaragua, South Africa, Mongolia, East Timor, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, etc. Again, why is your indignation so selective?

For your information:

I (Dick Cordray) am a World War II veteran, spent three years in the Army, one of them in WPTO (Western Pacific).

Remember picketing President Johnson in San Francisco. Had maybe fifty pickets, couldn't stand, had to walk. There were twice that many people taking pictures of us. If camera lenses could kill, we'd all have been dead.

Have been arrested twice at the National Nuclear Test Site in Nevada. I call being arrested in a good cause Quaker baptism.

Am currently convenor of the Peace and Social Action committee of the Huntsville Area Friends Meeting (Quaker).

The Meeting is preparing a statement on war in general and this US-UN vs. Iraq war in particular. I expect to see it approved in a week or so.

I have five children and seven grandchildren. I should like to leave them a world no worse than I found it.

Dick Cordray

Letter From the Governor

We support our military and their families.

Almost six months ago the eyes of the world turned to the developments in the Persian Gulf. On August 2, the leader of Iraq, Saddam Hussein, aggressively, took over the free nation of Kuwait.

This action by Saddam directly conflicts with the United Nations, which was created in 1945 to settle international conflicts peacefully. Saddam has refused to let the free country of Kuwait return to a peaceful state, and in turn a war has begun.

We have seen friends and family members deployed to the Middle East to protect our interests in the area. It has been a trying time for everyone involved and it is the hope of all of us that the war will end very soon.

I am asking you to pray for peace and the safe return of all the men and women who have been deployed. Alabama residents already have lost loved ones in this conflict.

The loss of any one life is a tragedy.

While we think and pray for our military personnel, the families left behind also need support. It is hard to imagine what it is like at home when a child ask a question about missile attacks. It must be very hard for a mother or father to comfort a child and still remain the strong hold for the family. And it must be very difficult to tuck a child into a bed and then face a quiet home without a spouse.

If you know of anyone who is alone while his or her spouse is deployed, please call them. Voicing your support for them is so important during this time. They need to understand that they are not alone and that you care and pray for them. Your call can mean so much during this fearful time.

Thank you for supporting your friends and loved ones. God bless America.

From SGA Minutes for Jan. 28, 1991

Present: Bhatia, Cobb, Gilmore, Krey, LaPointe, Mann, Miller, Wernle, Williams, Youngkin

Absent/excused: Conway, Jackson, Price
Officers present: Ceci, Ditto, Masters, Preston

New Business: Williams (Cobb) made a motion to charter the Association for Computing Machinery. This club existed previously and has asked to receive the $298.58 that was left in their budget. [10,0,0]

Cobb requested that a 10 minute limit be placed on gift request discussion. Miller took the position of Vice President due to Ditto's conflict of interest during the following discussions.

Williams (Cobb) made a motion to give the Slavo/Slavic Club $270.00 for a hall rental.

The Slavo/Slavic Club has asked the SGA to clear a debt so they may continue to exist. They had a dinner where students were given a discount price. They currently do not have the money to pay off the caterer. They need $500 to do so. This happened because the advisor insisted that the tickets be printed with the student price. Appropriations recommended that the SGA grant this money with the stipulation that they repay 75%. At the end of spring quarter, 25% of the debt should be repaid. The remaining 50% should be paid at the end of fall. The club would not be able to submit any further gift requests until this debt is paid off. Williams (Krey) made a motion to loan the $500 needed with the stipulation that $375 be paid back. [10,0,0]

IEEE submitted a gift request to help pay for a car project and conference expenses. Cobb (LaPointe) made a motion to grant $400. [9,0,1]

SEDS presented a gift request for $3500 to provide prize money for a contest they are running. A nationwide contest is being held to receive designs for the Von Braun Monument. This monument is to be paid for by the University. The prizes are restricted to students. Their other option for the money is the alumni association. Williams (Gilmore) moved to table this matter to appropriations.

There will be no meeting next week due to midterms.

Legislative Discussion: Voice Resolution 9101 was presented and discussed. Cobb (Youngkin) made a motion to accept this resolution with the condition that the second whereas be stricken and the University of Alabama be changed to include in Huntsville. [7,0,3] The final form should be submitted to the exponent.

High Expectations

To: President Mikhail Gorbachev

Mr. President:

I am writing on behalf of the Humanitas International Rights Committee, of which I am President, to express our profound dismay at the use of force in Vilnius in recent days. The suppression of democratic institutions with violence directly contradicts your stated philosophy of perestroika and makes a mockery of the Noble Peace Prize.

Troops cannot put an end to the aspirations of self-determination of the people of Lithuania, and those of the other nations which currently comprise the Soviet Union. Postponing the dreams of democracy and freedom will only make peace in the region impossible to achieve. Negotiations based upon nonviolence and mutual respect are the only hope.

The people of Lithuania and the other republics have waited long enough. We call on you to end the violence immediately before any more blood is shed. We further urge you to take without delay steps to establish full self-determination for the Baltic states and other republics.

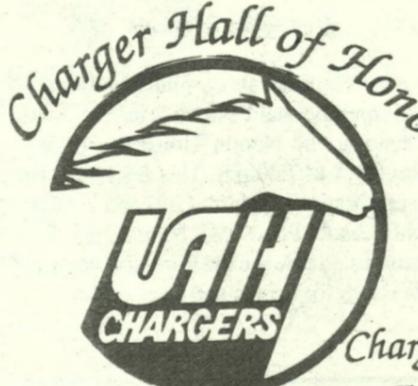

Several months ago, you received the Nobel Peace Prize in recognition of the reforms you have introduced in your country. We call on you to live up to the high expectations of this international honor.

Sincerely,
Joan Baez

Chi Omega would like to remind our diamond Pledges that we are behind you all the way! Our winter term diamond Pledges are Shannon Barsfield, Kathryn Canter, Jamie Greenstreet, Ramona Laws, and Holly Rylmut. A special Chi Omega congratulations goes out to Kim Gray Dickson. Kim, an Alumna, gave birth to Presley Sarah (9lbs. 11oz.) on January 28, 1991. We would all like to say hello to our newest "lil' legacy"! We would also like to congratulate Stephanie Roper for finally picking a wedding date (Sept. 21, 1991). The Chi Omega sisters would like to send our deepest sympathy and support to Kaycee Martin who lost her grandmother. We would like to express our support for the troops in the Gulf and send a special hug to Pat Sargent of Delta Chi - GOOD LUCK! Chi Omega had a successful rush party Thursday and we enjoyed meeting all who came. Sisters keep in mind our next rush parties. We're looking forward for an awesome Spring Pledge Class! To the men of Sigma Nu, we are looking forward to a great mixer!!! (Chi O's - Thanks to all who put info. in the "What's Up Box").

ΣΝ

Well, the boys are back from Louisiana (in spite of a trip to Bourbon Street) and learned a lot while at the southeast College of Chapters. We are glad they had a safe trip.

T-shirts for the White Rose formal are here. If you would like one, please get in touch with Eddie Ditto at 534-5156, because they are going fast! We're really looking forward to this event and we would like to thank Dennis Demirjian for the work he has put into it. Ni-i-i-ce!

We have just had a visit from a Sigma Nu national representative, Chad Schultz, and he was very impressed with how far we have come since our formal pledging into Sigma Nu last fall. We hope to be initiated into Sigma Nu and receive our charter in May of this year. Thanks to everyone for the support during this time, and continue to keep your eye on us.

Sigma Nu Thought For The Week: "...blah, blah, blah, blah, blah, Sigma Nu, blah, blah, blah..."

Circle K International

Circle K International (CKI) had a most excellent weekend. We started off Friday night by helping the Big Brother/Big Sisters Fundraiser Party. Everyone had a great time for a great charity. Well done to the hosts: Paul Luz, Joe Carden, Steve Cook.

Also this weekend, eight CKI members volunteered for the Cerebral Palsy Telethon. Thanks to those who donated!! I want to recognize those members who signed up for the 6-8 am shift Sunday morning: Melissa Grider, Dorothy Fesler, Nancy Reeves, and Peter Wozny. Thank you guys!!

This Saturday, Feb. 9th, is the S.C.A.N. (Stop Child Abuse & Neglect) puppet training session. This project helps recognize and deal with child abuse through the use of the puppets. It is for a great cause and it takes up very little time. All CKI members should attend and all interested STUDENTS ARE INVITED. It will be held in the University Center room 126B&C at 1:00pm. For more info, call Dai ("Di") at 830-6441.

CKI reminds everyone that there will be a BACCUS meeting on Feb. 13th at 12:15pm in the U.C. Come find out how YOU can Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students at UAH. To CKI members: BACCUS is a SERVICE PROJECT!

CKI is selling yellow bows for .25 cents and ALL PROCEEDS WILL BE GIVEN TO THE RED CROSS. Bows can be obtained at the information desk in the U.C. or from any CKI member. Show your support for our troops by buying a bow today!!

As a fundraiser, CKI will be selling baked goodies in Morton Hall on Feb. 11th, 13th, and 15th (MWF) in the lobby from 12:05 - 1:45 pm. Come grab a cookie and help us out.

Anyone interested in Circle K International is welcome to attend our meetings held on Tuesdays, 8:15 pm in UC 126B&C. Any questions, give the prez a call at 830-6441 (Dai). Have a great weekend!

ATΩ

Congratulations to our newly initiated brothers, Karl Wascenske and Byron Hendrick. They were initiated this past Saturday. Also, we welcome our new pledge class, Alpha Lambda, and we wish them luck. The brothers of Alpha Tau Omega would also like to express our deepest sympathies to the ladies of Kappa Delta for their loss of a dear alumnae. We would like to say that we are also looking forward to a mixer with everyone.

Alpha Tau Omega Gold started the basketball season off with an O.T. win last week. Way to go!! Also, Founder's Day went well. We thank Matt Iley for all of his hard work towards Founder's Day. Good job!

ΠΚΑ

Although we are enjoying the security and safety of civilian life in the United States, our thoughts and fervent hopes are with the Armed Forces serving our country during the Gulf crisis. We, the brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha, support not only President Bush, but also our own brothers who are defending the beliefs of our country, Craig Thompson, Edwin Crowder, and others throughout the nation.

We would like to thank all of you who came to our party last weekend. As usual, it was great. For those of you who came and had a good time, those who didn't but wanted to, and those who are interested in greek life, we invite you to our winter rush parties February 9th and 16th. Hope to see you there.

In rebuttal to Mr. Brewer: It is evident to us that your generalities about the greek system and your stereotyping of its members are a manifestation of narrowmindedness and ignorance. Perhaps you weren't aware that we, like others are a service organization and not just a social club. Our current philanthropic effort is the donation of $500 to Cerebral Palsy.

Congratulations are in order for Mark Farbman in giving his lavalier to Amy Lawson of Kappa Delta sorority. Also, we would like to recognize the newest members of Delta Zeta, Chi Omega, and Kappa Delta. We hope that your sorority days are enjoyable.

Alpha Psi Alpha

The brothers have been particularly active in laying the foundation for our chapter this week. Our goal is for this chapter to become one of the most prominent on UAH's campus. We recently elected officers for the chapter. The results were as follows: President, Maxwell Wade; Vice President, Tony Phillips; Secretary, Kuniki Lockett; Treasurer, John Habimana; Chaplain, John Wesley; Historian, Martin Crawford; Dean of Pledges, Keith Daniels. My congratulations to you all.

Our intramural basketball team had its first game of the season, Sunday, January 27. We would like to thank the Baptist Student Association for a very well played and close game. Fortunately the Alpha's prevailed with a score of 76 to 75. We would also like to thank those guys who choose to be a part of our team - your support was really needed. Congratulations to Brother John Wesley, the highest scorer with 13 points and our ALPHA PLAYER of the WEEK (APW).

Finally we would like to particularly thank the AKA's, KAY, Sigma Nu, the BSA and the NSBE for their encouraging words of support. Watch for our Black History Month display (in the U.C.) of prominent Alphas in American History, like them, we plan to do it '06 STYLE!

Delta Zeta welcomes two new pledges! Melody McNutt and Nancy Wolf accepted their bids last week. Congratulations, girls!

New Executive officers and elected chairmen enjoyed spending last weekend in Auburn. They met with officers and chairmen from the other Delta Zeta chapters in the state. Group discussions and workshops were part of the training for their offices.

Delta Zetas also enjoyed working for the Cerebral Palsy Telethon last weekend. Mary Cowell, Amy Jackson, Brandi Reeves, Leigh Ann Smith and Lena Thomas donated their time for a worthy cause.

Members attended the scholarship reception last weekend also, where several Delta Zetas received awards. Their names will appear in next week's column. Congratulations to those who received awards. Keep up the great work!

Everyone please remember the Delta Zeta annual Valentines Balloon Sale!!! What a perfect way to remember your valentine! Balloons will be on sale soon, so see a Delta Zeta to place your order.

Society of Women Engineers

The Society of Women Engineers will be having a meeting Thursday, Feb. 14, in Rm 123 (Power Lab) in the Engineering Bldg. All are welcome to meet our new officers. We will be discussing Engineering Open House and the upcoming Egg Drop Contest. Refreshments will be served. If you are interested in joining SWE, membership forms are located at our display board in the downstairs lobby of the Engineering Bldg.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman honorary society, takes pride in announcing this year's Book Award recipient, Ms. Diane S. Singer. This award is presented annually to a UAH teacher who has had the most impact on us as freshmen. In honor of Ms. Singer, ALD has donated Major Bible Themes: 52 Vital Doctrines of the Scripture Simplified and Explained, by Lewis Sperry Chater, to the UAH Library.

Le Cercle Francais

Le Cercle Francais cordially invites you to an International Festival. The event will be held at the Noojin House on Friday, February 8 at 7:00 pm. This festival is for the celebration of Mardi Gras and the Carnival Season. Prizes will be given for best costumes. Please see the Foreign Language professors for details and reservations.

The deadline for submissions to PULSE is Friday, at 5:00 p.m. All submissions must be neatly typed, double-spaced, or on a Macintosh disc. There is no charge for submissions to PULSE. Student clubs and organizations will be given priority. Announcements should be kept to 150 words or less. The exponent cannot guarantee that all announcements will be published.

All announcements must include a name and phone number. Photographs should contain the following information: name or organization, name of all individuals, and photographer. Announcements may be edited for length and clarity. Some announcements may be moved from the PULSE page to an appropriate section of the paper.

Alabama Hall of Fame Part II

by Ken Shelton
entertainment reporter

LIONEL RICHIE:

The Tuskegee native still holds the all-time record for the number of years with a number one hit (nine years). Richie, who was on top of the music world in the mid-1980's, spoke of his retreating into a self-imposed seclusion the last four years. During this time went, he experienced a long legal battle with his long time-manager Ken Kragen, as well as a divorce from his wife. When reporters asked about those personal problems in his life, he joked, "You can read the Enquirer about that." Richie was very sensitive to all questions of that nature, though he was eager to talk about his music of old and new material soon to come. He said, regarding his time away from music, "Though it was outrageous the way my career took off, success was so great that I was on an emotional time warp, with the stress of the business too much to handle." As for his songs, Richie said, "I had to take a back seat from things for a while to regain my creativity of the world around me." He added, "Though my great fans haven't heard from me for awhile, I believe they will like the new stuff better than anything I've done before." The new album is due for release around May or June. As for the old Richie classics, he stated, "I have to say my favorite two songs are Three Times a Lady and Lady...Both songs summed up my feelings for my ex-wife and women in general. When asked what the Alabama Music Hall of Fame meant to him, Richie said, "I still have a home in Tuskegee. I visit when I get the chance, and I love this state. The Hall of Fame just sums up the great things about Alabama's past and the future ahead.

JIM NABORS:

Jim Nabors, a Sylacauga native, graduated from the University of Alabama with a degree in choral music. Nabors was discovered, while doing a nightclub comedy act, by Andy Griffith and was cast as Gomer Pyle for a one episode shot. The character was so popular it led to a hot career in the town of Mayberry, turning into the four-year run of Gomer Pyle U.S.M.C. Nabors took off on his famous "Gall Lee" (golly) and "Surprise, Surprise, Surprise" lines.

When asked why he has not been seen on TV in a while, Nabors said, "After appearing in over four hundred TV shows and movies, I just got burnt out on it." Nabors stated, "I don't have plans to act again. Singing is what I want to concentrate on." When asked about his favorite Andy Griffith episode on which he appeared, he was quick to respond, "I have to say it is Citizens Arrest." Nabors stated, "The show was the funniest, and Don Knotts and myself had the best time doing lines about thirty times as Gomer arrested Barney." Nabors also said it was a thrill to do Return to Mayberry a few years back. "After so many years it was a great family reunion working with the whole cast again." He added, "Though the blend of talent was perfect, Andy Griffith made the return show work. Andy just brought the best out of you. He's a great director."

ALABAMA:

These Fort Payne natives were the most awarded act in show business in the 1980's. Lead singer Randy Owen joked as he held up his empty arms and said, "I still love this business even if I didn't win an award." Alabama, who first called themselves Wild Country, had a long tough road for their mistaken overnight success, according to lead guitarist, Jeff Cook. Beginning in 1980 the Fort Payne group's career skyrocketed with over fifteen number one hits and twenty-two top-forty charters. Member, Teddy Gentry said, "We were very lucky. If success hadn't have come when it did we would be working at who-knows-what kind of job today." Gentry added, "We had decided if we didn't chart with a song within two more months, our band was history." Owen laughed as he said, "Though it's been ten years now our amount of success is still hard to absorb sometimes." Owen stated, "All we ever really hoped to do was make a living at what we enjoyed doing. Nobody ever expects such enormous fame." Drummer Mark Herndon acknowledged Owen's statement by adding, "one week we were playing Myrtle Beach...clubs for five hundred dollars a night. The next month we were earning two hundred thousand dollars per night and performing for the President."

Alabama

BOBBY GOLDSBORO:

Bobby Goldsboro, a native of Dothan, attended Auburn University where he began his career with a band called The Webs. In 1962, Roy Orbison invited The Webs to join him on the road as his backup band. Goldsboro was quick to give Orbison a great deal of credit for his accomplishments. Goldsboro stated, "Roy was such a great person helping get me in doors I might otherwise of not have opened." He added, "I began to write with Orbison, which I believe led to me getting a recording contract." During 1968 and 1969 Goldsboro had his own hit ABC-TV series. The hit songs during that period for Goldsboro were See the Funny Little Clown, Watching Scotty Grow, and his biggest chart topper Honey.

When asked what his favorite song was, he said with a big grin, "See the Funny Little Clown, because I was broke at the time and the hit meant the most to me." Goldsboro added, though, "Honey is probably my best song. I try to write songs that really tell a story." Goldsboro feels that too often artists today concentrate too much on the music, and the lyrics don't say anything.

When speaking of the Alabama Music Hall of Fame Goldsboro said, "It's such an honor to be invited to perform on a show with some of the best artists around... The Hall of Fame will be a great addition to an already great state. It will help tourism and also really inspire our performers of tomorrow." Goldsboro's next project is a series of children's stories to be shown as a Easter special on the Disney Channel.

Carolyn Sanders; Faculty-Guest Recital

by Karin Licht
entertainment reporter

Despite the cold temperature in Roberts Hall, Dr. Carolyn Sanders performed a beautiful concert on February 1, 1991 at 8:15 pm. Dr. Sanders played the trumpet and, in one piece, the flugelhorn. Sanders was accompanied by Ann Knipschild on piano and Dr. R. Paul Crabb on a voice selection of the last piece.

The repertoire of the evening was various and complete. Although all five pieces were written in the twentieth century, they each were different in presentation. Vocalise by Sergei Rachmaninoff was soft and very flowing. Sonata by Paul Hindemith was a three part piece which included: Mit Kraft which was with power and very fast moving. Massig bewegt which was energetic and agitated but was calmer than the first movement; and Trauermusik funeral music which was very sad and expressed madness in some parts.

Legend by Georges Enesco was a more mellow piece and more high pitched than the others. Nightsongs by Richard Peaslee was exactly as the title suggests. It was a very romantic piece that expressed the different types of moods one might go through in a night. The final piece, Animal Ditties by Anthony Plog, which also had text written by Ogden Nash, was a humorous crowd pleaser. The text was performed in four parts by Crabb and included a turtle whose shell concealed his sex, a python who had 318 ribs which someone had counted while being digested, a hyena who wouldn't be invited anywhere, and the mysteries of the universe which asked the questions of why pork is white and ham is pink.

Dr. Sanders has been playing the trumpet since the sixth grade. Her education includes undergraduate study at the University of New Mexico. She received a Masters degree in Psychology at the University of Missouri-Columbia. She received a Masters degree in Music at the University of California where she said "it is always warm." Her Doctorate in Music was completed at the University of Florida. Dr. Sanders has been here at UAH since the beginning of the fall term of 1990.

The evening left the audience pleased and a little "warmer" inside.

Don Henry Entertains UAH

by Emalee Craft
entertainment reporter

On Thursday, January 31, my waning faith in the existence of acoustical music was revived with Don Henry. At 8:15 he hit the stage at "MOM'S," a lone man armed with only his guitar. No drum machines, laser displays or mindless babes were in this act. Rather, Henry charmed listeners with a humorous folk-rock set which was laced with a hint of blues.

I went to the show expecting country music, since Henry has written for artists such as Kathy Mattea, John Conlee and The Oak Ridge Boys. He has even won a Country Music Award (CMA) for Best Songwriter of 1990. However, Henry proved otherwise as he jumped in with his Mr. God, a wry commentary on fair-weather Christian values.

Later, he probed the deeper question of Elvis Presley's non-appearance at Super Bowl XXV as he lead into They're With Elvis Now. With Me and My Counterpart he expounded upon life in, as he put it, "trailer-park America." Henry covered some Elton John and later sang Lost Dog about (you guessed it) a missing canine. He also revealed a more somber side in his music as he canvassed the topics of Martin Luther King, the streets of Los Angeles, and loneliness in songs such as Motel.

Henry moved to Nashville in 1979 from his native Monterey, CA. He was drawn not for country music, but because, he said,

"Nashville is a great place for songwriters...the music itself, especially acoustical, is most important there." He thinks his music is more folk-rock, "in the vein of John Colvin and early '70's rock."

As for Henry's methods of songwriting, he said, "I'm thinking of ideas constantly, and just writing them down...If you don't write them down, it hurts." Concerning some of his more risque songs and the current issue of censorship, Henry said, "There can't be too many rules...you want people to hear, you want to pull them in, but not to offend them."

It seems that Henry's method has paid off. In addition to his CMA, he's been nominated for a Grammy for a song which he co-wrote. The song Where Have You Been? was recorded by Kathy Mattea.

His own album will come out in April on Epic Records and is called Wild in the Back Yard, which will include many of the songs he performed at "MOM'S." Be on the look for this baby, especially if you missed the show.

As for future goals, Henry said, "I'm not worried about selling a million records...I'd just like to sell enough for the record company to say okay you can make another one...and someday make a mark on pop culture."

Lynn & Friends at 'MOM'S' February 7th

by Kara Hetrick
Cabaret Director

Dummies, puppets, and inanimate objects are brought to life before your very eyes. These are just a sample of the many animations Lynn, a self taught ventriloquist, can produce in a show. Lynn's "family of friends" is constantly growing and changing. A few of her characters include Camelot, a sometimes drunk camel; Judd Wapner, and the Drawing Board-Lynn sketches a face on a blank board with the help of the audience. Imagine their amazement when the mouth and eyes start moving!!

Lynn & Friends will perform at "MOM'S" coffeehouse on February 7 at 8:15 pm. Admission is $1.00 and includes chips, sodas, and a selection of international coffees. For more information on this event, please contact, Kara Hetrick, A.C.E. Cabaret Director, at 895-6428.

UAH Student Raps School Lunches

by Patrick M. Haden
entertainment reporter

If you happen to be one of those people gifted with the ability (or cursed with the necessity) to be awake at 6 a.m., you may see Melvin Williams perform on Channel 31's morning show, WAAY Too Early. Williams is the one who raps the city and county school lunch menus.

A sophomore at UAH, Williams is majoring in Communications. He said he began working at Channel 31 when a friend introduced him to the station's production manager. Initially he was being trained to work cameras for the show, he told the exponent, "and things progressed from there."

At the time, Williams said, someone was just reading the school menus, "but one day someone asked me to rap [them]." After that, he stated, the station received some mail from viewers wanting the rapping segment to continue.

When asked what he thinks of his segment, Williams said that he still cannot believe it. "People come up to me everywhere...and ask for autographs." He is also surprised at the success of rap on the show. When asked why, he stated, "Maybe just because it's me [doing it]."

Williams also appears rapping in commercials for the show, and he sometimes raps "Happy Birthday" requests and plugs for his sponsor, Meadow Gold.

Williams said he enjoys doing the segment and wants to continue with Channel 31, both on the show and behind the scenes. He added that he wants to be a commercial producer when he graduates.

Williams wanted to say the following to exponent readers:

"If you want to see a show that's funny and not dirty, tune into 31 on WAAY Too Early."

The show airs weekday mornings at 6 a.m.

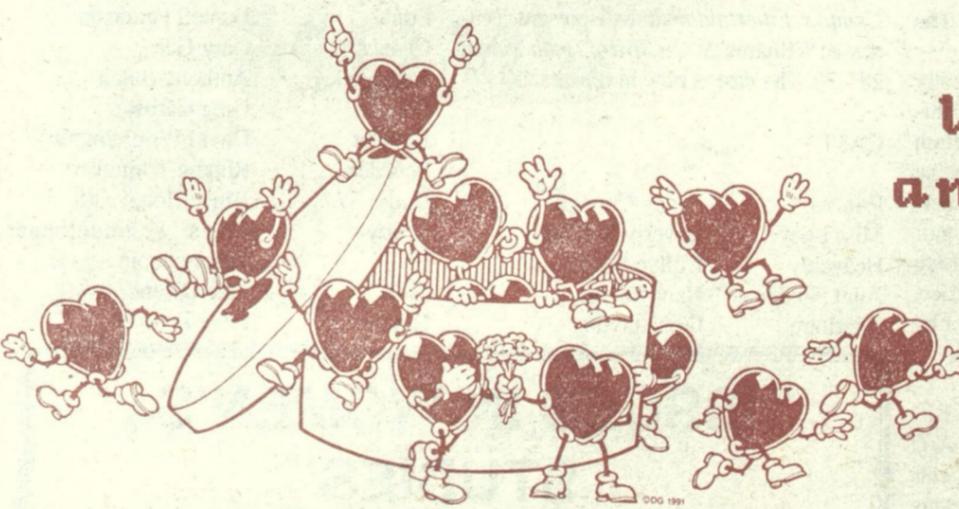

Entertainment Trivia Contest

Each week exponent will present a Trivia contest concerning some form of entertainment. The winner will be given a $25.00 gift certificate from the Classic Cafe. Deadline for entries is Friday at 5:00 pm the same week of issue. Winners will be chosen and announced in the next week's edition of exponent. In case of a tie, a drawing will be held. Submit all entries to UC 104, Attn. Entertainment Editor. This week's question...

The Monkees were a popular band in the 1960s. Name the members of the band and list four of its popular hit songs.

UAH Sets its Third Annual Art Auction

by Kim Ann King
University Relations

The fun and excitement are mounting as the UAH Alumni Association plans for its third annual Art Auction. The auction will be held on Saturday, February 9, 1991, in the Tom Beville Center, 301 Sparkman Drive, on the UAH campus at 7:30 p.m. A preview of the many beautiful works of art to be sold will begin at 6:30 p.m. All proceeds go to the UAH Alumni Association Scholarship Fund. Last year the auction raised approximately $5,000 for scholarships, with over 250 people attending.

Mike Gillespie, chairman of the Madison County Commission, will serve as this year's celebrity auctioneer. Hourly door prizes will be awarded, culminating in a drawing for "Libertad II" by John Kelly, a $1,000 artist's proof, which can be viewed at the Tom Beville Center beginning January 18.

"Works by LeRoy Neiman, Chagall, Delacroix, Picasso, Dali, and many other famous artists will be featured this year," said Renee Mooney, UAH's Alumni Affairs director. "Prices will range from $35 to exclusive works worth up to $20,000, and we'll accept MasterCard, Visa, American Express, and Discover cards, as well as personal checks and cash."

Each certified, custom-framed work of art carries a fifteen-year exchange privilege with Genesis Galleries of Atlanta, which is helping to run the event.

"Last year's auction was very successful, and I'm looking forward to an even better auction this year. I'm pleased we can raise this money for students who would otherwise be unable to continue their education," said Jesse Stutts of Stutts Construction Company, who is co-chairing the event with Danny Sapach of SCI.

Sapach said that he'd "like to encourage art lovers everywhere to attend this very worthwhile event. I promise you a good time, a good selection of art, and plenty of good company."

Patrons will be asked to make a five-dollar donation at the door, and reservations are requested. Hors d'oeuvres will be served while a jazz band entertains guests. To reserve your place for what promises to be a fun night out for a great cause, call the UAH Alumni Affairs Office at (205) 895-6085 by February 6.

Rockers Originality and Diversity Spells Confidence

by Ken Shelton
entertainment reporter

What happens when you combine the four most versatile, diverse musicians to be found and mix a lot of perseverance and the confidence of the most awarded rock out to be found. Kashmir and the Shadows epitomizes an original band with a unique sound like no other, paying its dues.

Kashmir and the Shadows proved once again last Friday at the Tip Top Cafe it has all the ingredients to make it to the top of rock elite. The band of four has grown very popular among college campus crowds, along with the Southeastern club circuit. The four are in their early twenties, yet demonstrate musical expertise beyond their years.

While at the Tip Top performance, I saw a fire and determination in the group that really electrified the audience. The comments from the local fans is common with their ever-growing following around North Alabama.

The band is composed of Duane Steenson, Keith Rogers, James Sheer and Dave Patterson. Lead singer Steenson describes the group as an "alternative, original rock band." Steenson says, "We take you through ups and downs in our show. Our ups really take hold of you and the downs have you paying close attention to the lyrics."

Guitarist Rogers says, "We don't mean to be cocky or conceited with our music. We just happen to believe we can go all the way to the top with our music."

When asked about the groups ultimate goal, Steenson was quick to say, "our goal is to be the greatest Rock and Roll band in the World."

The band formed four years ago and credits its diversity with each band member having their own individual musical influence. While Steenson grew up listening to Bruce Springsteen and Pink Floyd, Rogers' inspiration was The Cult. Greer's following was country music and Patterson's favorite group is Rush.

Charles McCain of the Vanderbilt Review calls the group, "the most interesting band to come out of the South since R.E.M."

Deb Flippen of Pegasus Productions adds, "Kashmir is one of the most original and promising bands I've heard in years."

After leaving the performance of Kashmir and the Shadows, I highly recommend that anyone take in their show during one of the band's many local performance dates.

PAMA presents For Love of Women

by Johnny West
entertainment editor

PAMA, The Professional Academy for Modeling and Acting, will again present a baker's dozen of dramatic and romantic dialogues, monologues and scenes Friday and Saturday nights at 8 pm. The director and school instructor is billing the event, For Love of Women.

The production will be staged in the 50-seat theater of PAMA at 1405 Weatherly Plaza behind Big B Drugs off Bailey Cove Road. Reservations will be necessary for the event and may be obtained by calling 883-9992. A donation of $3.00 per person is encouraged. Parental discretion at a PG-13 level is advised due to strong language in the performances.

The cast will include some of the Huntsville's up and coming young stars. The students of PAMA include Danielle Patterson, David Helba, Chris Gareri, Todd Coker, Tim Pozzo, and Wayne Rogers. Huntsville theatre veteran Greg Carlisle will make a cameo appearance.

Some of the highlighted scenes and monologues will be Slam by Jane Nixon Willis, in which two high school students discuss their affection for the rough dances and high they get at a slam dance club in New York. Another exciting feature should be End of the World, by Arthur Kopit, in which a man tells of his love for his wife and baby while living with the possibility of nuclear war.

This is shaping up to be an exciting evening for the theatre-goer and is the stepping stone to future PAMA events. It is the hope of Graham Chambers to present productions that the other local theatre companies "won't touch." (the kind of thing college students would like). I suggest if your schedule permits, be sure to catch one or both of the performances.

Professionalism Brings Salesman to Life

by Patrick M. Haden
entertainment reporter

Friday night:

As the cast took their bows, they were obviously pleased with themselves — and with good reason. The Lee Deal Production of Arthur Miller's well-known drama Death of a Salesman was a success.

Huntsville audiences were treated to this serious drama last weekend, January 31 to February 2, at the VBCC Playhouse.

Mike Zari as Willie Loman

Overall, the performance was excellent, though the show had a couple of problems. An occasional line was spoken too softly, and some of the background music drowned out the corresponding dialog. Also, the first exchange between the characters Biff and Happy was rushed, so the dialog lost its conversational effect and became a recital of lines.

These problems, however, were mostly overlooked due to the performances of the cast. Michael Zari, an actor in his mid-twenties, turned in an outstanding and convincing performance as Willie Loman, the aging salesman. Zari's facial expressions and hand gestures were detailed, showing his ability to portray the difficult character. (Extraordinary aging make-up for Zari was provided by Darryl and Stephanie Osborne.)

Margaret Henken was also outstanding in her role of Linda Loman. Her ability to change from older to younger and back was above-par. Also, Ms. Henken was convincing as the motherly type to sons, Biff and Happy, and as the go-between during the family's arguments.

Greg Carlisle was excellent as Biff Loman, and his emotion brought an extreme intensity to several dramatic scenes, especially to the final argument between Biff and Willie. Peter Owen also turned in a well-received performance as Happy Loman; his ability to change his character's age also shined. The character Bernard was accomplished by Gary Gee, whose transition from the nerdy schoolboy to the sophisticated lawyer was professionally played.

The supporting actors whose performances stood out were Barry Ward as Charlie, John Harrison as Ben, and David Wrightington as Stanley. The remaining cast played their parts well; even the smallest roles were done with the same professionalism as the lead actors.

The style and directing of the show was excellent. Costumes, hair, sets, and props were consistent with the time period. The production was staged "in the round," with the action taking place in the center of a surrounding audience. The difficulty of changing sets in a show of this staging was easily accomplished by the stage crew. The crew was well-organized, and set changes were performed in a quick and precise manner.

The set design was simple (necessary when "in the round") but easily understandable; in fact, the absence of complicated sets placed the audience's focus more on the performances of the cast. The changes to and from flashback scenes were outstanding and were accomplished through both mood (lighting changes) and characters (acting, costume, and hair changes).

The local production of Death of a Salesman was directed by Graham Chambers. This reporter would highly recommend the show if ever an encore performance is given.

This performance rates three stars.

Are Minority Scholarships Above the Law?

by Thomas A. Perry student/Thurgood Marshall School of Law distributed by The Forum Syndicate

The recent Department of Education ruling which sent the so-called civil rights leadership into a frenzy should have become one of the cornerstones of United States education policy. The Department's ruling only reaffirmed what the language of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 so clearly states: that discrimination on the basis of race, color or national origin is against the law. Why then would so-called minority leaders come out so strongly against the application of a law which many of them (are you listening Ben Hooks?) helped to enact?

The Department of Education via Assistant Secretary Williams recently declared that the practice of awarding race-based scholarships was against public policy. Many legal scholars, including Derrick Bell of the Harvard Law School, have declared that the Department of Education's ruling could easily have withstood judicial scrutiny. Similarly, there has been no outcry from the legal community attacking the legality of Williams' policy statement. It seems that the legal community understands the concept of applying the various laws of our country equally to all people, not just to specific groups. I would call the application of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to all Americans as being a type of intellectual honesty. What defines intellectual honesty? It means that one group shouldn't ask for the protection of its rights under a law unless it is willing to submit itself to the possible detriments that may occur within an equal application of that same law. Does it not seem unusual then that civil rights leaders such as Benjamin Hooks of the NAACP cry foul when one of the arguably more important laws of our country is simply applied to blacks in the same fashion that it would apply to whites?

It seems that Dr. Hooks is leading minority students down a yellow brick road of resentment and perhaps increased racial hostility on the nation's college campuses. This resentment will undoubtedly result as a by-product of the President's decision not to follow Mr. Williams' findings. This resentment and animosity may manifest itself in the form of racial hostilities at college campuses where race relations were somewhat amicable. However, if Hooks truly believed in bettering the racial climate in the United States, he could have spoken a thousand words simply by uttering nine, "I support the ruling of the Department of Education." Yes, uttering these nine words may have altered the college plans of hundreds if not thousands of black and other minority college students, but it would have also sent a message. The message sent to millions of Americans would have read "blacks and other minorities can be intellectually honest even when it hurts." Hooks, however, chose not to send this message.

President Bush also failed to seize this opportunity to stand up for fairness. The result of the President's lack of leadership means that for the next four years minority students would be able to receive scholarship monies for which the non-minority population on most college campuses will not have a chance to compete. If I were a non-minority college student, I would be madly upset at the fact that I did not have the opportunity to compete for the same scholarship that was awarded to a minority solely based upon race. Do you want to get a clearer picture of what non-minority students may be feeling? Put yourself in the shoes of the non-minority college student. Your family has realized that it cannot afford to continue financing your education. Imagine walking into the financial aid office at the university that you now attend. Upon inquiring about financial aid opportunities, you are told that the only financial aid that remains is designated specifically for minority students. Wouldn't you feel a certain amount of animosity towards the next minority student that you came in contact with?

The so-called civil rights leadership regularly issues inflammatory statements detailing how either public or private actions and/or policies will result in a backlash of racism. One should wonder whether the so-called civil rights leadership has recognized that its actions will cause a backlash of racism. Many Americans, who genuinely want to provide equal access to education for all, and who believed, if not participated, in the civil rights movement, will stop supporting the traditional civil rights organizations such as the NAACP, PUSH, and the Urban League. I believe that many God-fearing Americans will do just this because now it is clear that these so-called civil rights leaders no longer want equality. Now these so-called leaders want to have their respective groups placed above the law. The American people, college students included, will not stand for this.

Civil rights leaders have used the Civil Rights Act to protect myriad Americans from the "vestiges of racism which pervade this country." However, these leaders now feel that minorities should be excluded from the class of Americans to which the Act applies. Benjamin Hooks and others are making a mockery of the system and are certainly diminishing the earnest efforts of leaders across the country who truly want equal rights for all. Many thanks go to Ben Hooks and to other so-called civil rights leaders for showing Americans that people of color don't want to be judged by the content of our character but rather by the color of our skin.

Chargers Won and Lost against Mankato State

by James Bradford
sports reporter

The UAH Chargers Hockey team played top ranked Mankato State of Division III. Friday night, Graham Fair gave UAH the lead in the first period. Fair scored on a power play, and he was assisted by Don Burke and Don Rugg. This was the only goal scored in the first period. In the second period, Mankato State scored the first two goals. For Mankato State, Bill Rooney score the goals. Rooney was assisted by Craig Willmert and Mike Cijoili. UAH countered this with Stuart Vitue's goal that tied the game at 2-2. Vitue was assisted by Don Rugg and Doug McDonald. UAH took the lead on Don Rugg's unassisted goal. From this point, Mankato State never threatened again. UAH defeated Mankato

State 3-2.

Saturday night, UAH took an early 1-0 lead on Doug McDonald's goal. He was assisted by Stuart Vitue. In the second period, Mankato State tied the game on Craig Willmert's goal, and he was assisted by Kelly Bakke. Then, Mankato State scored the next two goals by Paul Gherardi and Scott Burkhoklder respectively. Mankato State opened the third period with Mike Ciolli scoring the goal. He was assisted by Derek Cooper and Bill Rooney. Then, UAH's Doug McDonald scored, and he was assisted by Stuart Vitue and Don Burke. UAH had many opportunities to score, but they could not capitalize on the opportunities. Mankato State defeated UAH 4-2. UAH's Bob Thompson compiled 79 saves, and he was named Humana Star of the Series. UAH's record drops to 8-16-2.

Chargers Pound LMU Railsplitters

by Joseph Larney
sports reporter

The UAH Men's Basketball Team traveled to Harrogate, TN Saturday night where they spoiled LMU's opening of their new B. Frank Turner Arena by defeating the Railsplitters 85-69 in front of an estimated crowd of 2,000 fans.

UAH Coach Joe Baker prepared his team before the contest by telling them they would have to execute and really focus if they were going to spoil the Railsplitters festivities.

Spoil the festivities is exactly what the Chargers did as they executed their coach's strategy to almost perfection to improve their record to 9-12 on the season.

Freshman point guard Chris Cothron led five UAH players in double figures with 17 points. Former Lee High standouts Mitch Moore and Todd Howard scored 12 points each and Mike Morris and Erik Fail added 10 points each. Jackie Cunigan pulled down a game-high nine rebounds.

"This is a very big victory for us, our guys played a very good game tonight," UAH Assistant Coach John London said. "We were very concerned about playing LMU in their new gym. We knew they would be pumped up and we didn't want to let their emotions be a factor. Our guys off the bench did a good job of picking up the slack when Mike [Morris] got in early foul trouble."

UAH will finish a six-game road trip when they travel to Jacksonville State University Thursday night to take on the Gamecocks.

UAH/Coca-Cola Player of the Week

The UAH/Coca-Cola Player of the Week for January 28-February 3 is Mike Morris. Morris is a guard on the University of Alabama in Huntsville men's basketball team. The other nominee for the Player of the week award was hockey goalie Bob Thompson.

Morris earns the award for his play in the Wofford College and Lincoln Memorial University games. Morris scored 24 points in the Wofford game and 13 points in the Lincoln Memorial game. He is averaging 20 points per game.

"Mike has been a leader for us the whole year" commented Coach Joe Baker. "A year ago Mike took a back seat to Thomas Jones, but this year he has stepped forward and led the scoring offense. Mike has been an impact player for us because of his consistent play and his leadership. The young players really look up to him."

Morris is the son of Geraldine and Wayne Morris of Cullman.

Lady Chargers Struggle on the Road

by Jennifer L. Grace
sports editor

The UAH women's basketball team finished 0-3 last week as they near the completion of a very challenging portion of the season played mostly away from home. The Chargers, now 11-8, will play at the University of North Alabama on February 7 at 7:00 p.m. before returning home on February 9 to compete against Columbus College.

On January 26, the Chargers completed a lengthy road trip, playing at Gardner-Webb College in Boiling Springs, NC, where they were defeated 102-70. One player scored in double figures for UAH, Melanie Donahoo. Donahoo, a freshman guard from Cedar Bluff, MS, had 17 points for the game. The leading rebounder was Shana Cabaniss with nine rebounds. The Chargers shot 37.5% from the field and 42.3% from the freethrow line while the Gardner-Webb Bulldogs shot 52.3% from the field and 81% from the line.

On January 31, the Chargers lost a close game to Miles College 62-60. Leading scorer for the Chargers was Inga Sorenson, a junior playing in the forward position, who had 17 points. Other UAH players in double figures were Kim Cooper with 14, Tanya "Bo" Wigley with 10, and Marie Gilmore with 10. Sorenson also led the Chargers in rebounding with 12.

After traveling to Harrogate, Tennessee on February 2, the Chargers were defeated by the Railsplitters of Lincoln Memorial, 112-95. Junior forward Kim Cooper was the Chargers leading scorer with 19 points. Four other UAH players were also in double figures: Kim McBride, with 12; Shana Cabaniss, with 14; Inga Sorenson, with 16; and Marie Gilmore, with 12.

The Chargers upcoming opponents, the Lions of UNA, are 12-5 for the season. UNA has played solidly at home winning nine out of ten games. The Columbus College Cougars are currently 6-13. UAH plays Columbus at 5:30 p.m. on February 9 at Spragins Hall. In addition, Saturday, February 9, is Youth Sports Night, and city youth teams who call and make reservations ahead of time will be admitted free to the game. The Chargers are working hard at practice during the week and even on Sundays in preparation for their upcoming competition.

Anti-War Protest Draws 300,000 to Washington

I have just returned from marching on Washington. On Jan. 26th, I and as many as 300,000 wonderful people who are similarly outraged and grief-stricken over the War in the Gulf delivered a message to our government. We want this insanity to stop now!

About 20 people from Huntsville met two buses and two vans full of friends, old and new, from Birmingham on Friday evening. We drove through the night, arrived in Washington at about noon on Saturday, joined in the march which was then in full swing, got back on the buses at about 6 p.m. Saturday, and arrived back in Alabama early Sunday morning.

In Washington, there were young and old, rich and poor, women and men, and children. There were many veterans groups. Many of the marchers were Black Americans. The signs were splendid: "Lets Negotiate to Stop War," "This Vet says no More War," "War is Insane-Impeach Bush for Insanity!" "If Quayle Were in the Guard Today, Could His Dad Afford it??" "Gray Panthers on the Prowl-House the Homeless-Evict the Weapons," "A Man Who Cannot Be at Peace With Broccoli is a Danger to Himself & Others," "An Eye for an Eye Leaves the World Blind," "Noriega, Hussein? Which One of Your Old Pals is Next George," and on and on.

There were hundreds of banners carried by groups in support of the anti-war effort. Some of the ones I saw included the National African-American Network, Birmingham Committee Against US. Intervention in the Middle East, Alabama NOW, Gray Panthers, Veterans for Peace, Vietnam Veterans Against the War, and Green Peace.

We marched down Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the White House, which was lined shoulder to shoulder with police and police cars parked end to end along the entire length of the White House grounds. There was a looming presence of mounted patrols. A friend who has experienced martial law in the streets of Brazil said it reminded her of that experience.

We gathered on the Ellipse for the rally. There we heard from Jesse Jackson, who said "The price of oil goes up, the price of blood goes down. There must be a better way! All bombing and no talk will leave us brain dead. We must be driven by a sense of history, not hysteria."

Molly Yard, President of the National Organization For Women, screamed "Saudi Arabia is not a democratic society. Why are we defending the apartheid regime of Saudi Arabia that segregates women and gives them no rights at all? El Salvador, Nicaragua, Honduras... We are not supporting democracy!"

A Palestinian woman said "Let us share our hopes and fears, let us unite... Stop sending high tech weapons."

Another speaker said "Killing is killing. Human life is valuable everywhere. Why does the media ignore the killing of tens of thousands of children in Iraq and Kuwait." And still another said "It was you Mr. Bush, who supported Iraq with 4.5 billion dollars each year. On July 27th, you vetoed sanctions against Iraq for human rights abuses. Your ambassador had no opinion on the border dispute with Kuwait. If Hussein has nuclear, chemical, or biological weapons, it's because you gave them to him and we should send you to fight him and bring our troops home!"

A representative from FAIR (Fairness and Accuracy in Reporting) said "You think war is about killing and environmental destruction, but it's about big business." She blasted the biased media coverage and said that Ted Koppel a few nights previously stated that, except for a few bombs on Tel Aviv, "its been a quiet night." "Why didn't he ask an Iraqi mother on whom thousands of bombs were falling how quiet it was?" She urged people to stop buying products that sponsor propaganda and misinformation.

Barbara Reed addressed the audience as its size swelled from marchers continuing to pour onto the Ellipse. "It appears we have learned nothing from the Vietnam war. Our leaders have learned nothing. There is no glory in a folded flag or a purple heart. This folded flag hasn't bought me comfort or fed my children. My husband came home in a body bag. I don't want my friends, neighbors, and loved ones to come home in a body bag for truly, there is no glory in a folded flag."

Another speaker read a poem, "My daddy is only a picture. A picture that hangs on the wall. My daddy is only a picture, and he doesn't talk at all."

Jim Wallace represented the clergy against the war. He said "God is on the side of the suffering" and added "The churches will become the sanctuaries in the midst of a desert storm. War is not the answer."

Ritchie Havens sang two moving anthems from the 60s-"Where Have All the Flowers Gone" and "We Shall Overcome"-as marchers started to find their way to the metro and to the buses, planes, and cars that brought them to Washington. Other speakers included actors Susan Sarandon, Tim Robbins, Margot Kidder, and Cleve Robinson. Daniel Ellsberg said "The presence of this many people gives me hope in a dark time. We are a minority who understands, but we are not few and we are determined to bring the troops home."

There is certainly a cross section of people who have joined their talents and energy for this struggle. Our passengers included Indian- and Iranian-Americans, who gave us a marvelous perspective on the history of the Middle East. There were young Anarchists, who spoke about taking a detour through the financial district and throwing rocks and paint bombs, and pushing down the fence in front of the FBI building. They said that about eight policemen grabbed three of the rowdies and the other several hundred started to flee. Then they stopped and returned and started yelling at the police to let them go and they did.

This trip to Washington reassured us that we are part of a huge groundswell of public outrage, both in this country and abroad. We will continue to have our anti-war gatherings each Saturday at 2 p.m. at Big Springs Park Gazebo, across from the Hilton. There, we sing, talk, share the information that our government is trying to keep from us, and we support each other in this time of grief and gloom. Please come help us stop this war. We can. Another generation did it in the sixties. We can do it now and no other single thing we do in our lives may be as important or as patriotic.

CHOICES

Things that make you go...hmm

At the risk of appearing to steal a cometic style from Arsenio Hall or Andy Rooney, I have assembled a few difficult questions that practically beg to be answered by those of high mind and tender heart. I wouldn't dare suggest answers to these questions, but merely ask gentle readers to ponder their own response.
Have you ever wondered...
...How come women with long hair and long legs are attractive, but women with long leg hairs are not?
...If Florence Henderson didn't have a commercial contract with Wesson Oil, would we ever see her on TV?
...Was Bea Arthur once known as Frank?
...Would you ever date anyone who admits to taking square-dance lessons?
...If you're better looking than you think,

or worse looking than you fear?
...If Arsenio Hall buys his own makeup or borrows it from a girlfriend?
...If anyone on the planet cares if Gary Coleman ever stages a comeback?
...What Rosanne Barr's beautician charges for a leg wax?
...Does anyone actually become a star after an appearance on 'Starsearch'?
...Is John Davidson an actor who can't sing, or a singer who can't act?
...What was Bob Hope's claim to fame before he got old?
...What Alabamians did before the creation of football?
...Why cashiers always have to use the P.A. system to do a price check on condoms?
...Did being drug-free really make a noticeable difference in Lauren "Julie" Tewes performance on 'The Love Boat'?
Hmm...Just something to think about.

President Cost reported for the Senate Executive Committee. This committee met with members of the Senate Finance Committee with President Moquin to discuss financial issues and lack of full definition of the role of Provost. President Moquin was informed that the faculty senate supports the office of Provost as the executive vice-president of the university.

In addition to budget matters discussed in the meeting, President Cost informed the Senate that the State of Alabama failed to meet payroll on December 31 and UAH borrowed money from Tuscaloosa campus to meet the UAH payroll.

Finance: Professor Graves asked Professor Walker to report on the financial status of the University. He discussed the lack of resources at UAH and the decision to wait 30 days to pay vendors.

Governance: Professor Williamson announced that elections to the Faculty Appeals will be held as soon as all nominations are received. Ballot will be mailed in February.

As senate reports were made, discussions were held on the finances of UAH and the shortfall estimated at $3.1 million. Professor Harwell attended and requested faculty to submit research proposals to him. These proposals should be no longer than 2 pages. All projects should have the approval of the department chair and dean as research money may be available to help pay faculty salaries.

President Cost commented as the reports were made on the lack of rigor in managing financial resources of the University, and he thanked Professor Harwell for his efforts.

Campus Planning: Professor Walker reported that discussion on concerning the site of the Alabama Credit Union and Child Care Center are being discussed. The Credit Union will build a building on the UAH campus, but the location has not been determined.

Following this report, President Cost asked all faculty to voice opinions on the sale of student housing across University Drive. A decision on this property is to be made soon.

Professor Peacock asked if anyone on the Radiation Committee knew if radom levels at Morton Hall and the Nursing Building have been discussed. Failing to receive an affirmative answer, Professor Peacock requested the Radiation Committee to agenda this discussion at its next meeting.

Report of Provost Yost

This report centered on the financial problems of UAH and the current plans to call for projected revenues for 1991-1992 and 1992-1993. Provost Yost discussed plans for proration and options for cutting 3.7% from this year's budget. Provost Yost hopes to make differential cuts rather than across-the-board cuts. Other topics discussed included a subcommittee/steering committee for the Campus Planning/Strategic Planning Committees, laboratory fees, the untimely death of Harold Wilson, Dean of Science, the search committee for Dean of Liberal Arts, issues of Title VI, and proposed funding cuts for Library.

Career Connections Personal Values: A Career Consideration?

by Lori Lawler
Career Services

When trying to choose a career or decide about a job, you should always take your life and work values into consideration. Values are very subjective and there are no values which are right or wrong. They are feelings which relate to the way that we view the world around us including other people, things and even concepts. Values help us to make choices in our lives between good and bad. Clarifying what's most important to us before we make a career decision is imperative because it helps us to know which decision is right for us.

Our beliefs determine our values, which in turn lead to a decision which ultimately affects our behavior. Therefore, clarifying our work values helps us to make career decisions which determine our everyday work behavior. We must not know only our own values in a certain occupation or worksite, but we must also be aware that others' values may differ from our own and realize that we must respect their opinions and values just as we expect them to respect ours. Finding careers that are consistent with our personal values helps us to find internal happiness, as well as assisting us with external relationships. For instance, someone who had a strong desire to help others and to make a contribution to society would probably be more happy as a social worker or a physician than as a loan shark. This person would probably also be able to find work environments that were consistent with his or her values.

The following are just a few examples of work values that can lead to happiness for different people. How do you feel about them? Achievement, Health, Politics, Authority, Independence, Prestige, Comfort, Leadership, Stability, Education, Leisure, Understanding, Family, Money, and Variety.

Any career-related issues that you may have can be addressed in the Office of Career Services in the UC Room 212 or by calling 895-6612.

Statewide Tornado Drill Scheduled for Wednesday, February 13, 1991

As part of Alabama Severe Weather Awareness Week, the National Weather Service and the Alabama Emergency Management Agency will conduct a statewide tornado drill on Wednesday, February 13, 1991. In the event of bad weather the drill will be postponed until the following Thursday or Friday, or cancelled as conditions dictate. The drill will be conducted in cooperation with the news media, amateur radio and state and local officials.

The primary purpose of the drill is to give everyone a chance to determine if they can receive a warning in time and know what to do if a warning is issued and/or a tornado is sighted.

To add as much realism as possible, the exact time of the drill will not be announced in advance. While the drill may not come at a convenient time for some, everyone is still urged to take part. We will not know in advance when an actual tornado may hit so we need to treat the drill in the same manner. Here is what is planned for Wednesday, February 13, 1991:

1. Sometime during the day, a practice "Tornado Warning" will be issued by the National Weather Service in Birmingham for all of Alabama. The Tornado Warning will be relayed over all severe weather communications channels and clearly labeled as a drill.

2. In an actual warning situation each office of the National Weather Service would issue a warning for the specific counties affected within that office's area of county warning responsibility. All warning systems will be asked to activate. All NOAA Weather Radio alarms will be activated by the National Weather Service. Sirens will be sounded in those areas where approved by your County Emergency Management Agency. Cooperating radio and TV stations will interrupt programming to broadcast the warning. The warning (clearly labeled as a drill) will be in effect for 20 minutes from its issuance time.

To participate in the drill, first note the time you first heard the "warning," and second, take the same action that you would if the warning was real. Participants are requested to respond on their ability to hear the warning quickly and whether or not safety actions could be taken. You must be able to hear the warning very quickly and respond immediately. Violent tornadoes often form within seconds and may move a mile-a-minute.

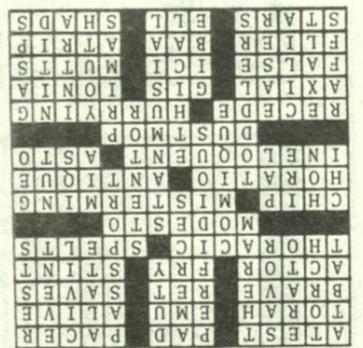

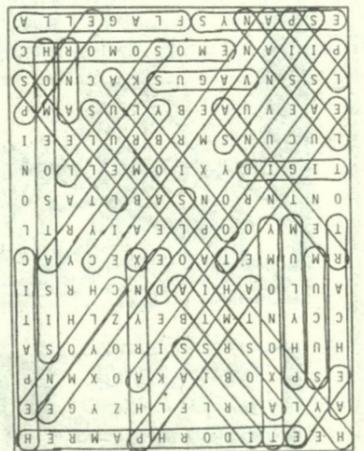

Please direct any comments or questions to your county or Alabama Emergency Management Agency, or the nearest National Weather Service Office.

Send early. Stay late.

Beat out the competition this Valentine's Day with some terrific strategy. Just call your FTD® Florist and send the FTD Flower Basket Bouquet. And to be sure your Valentine gets one, send it a day or two early. And she may ask you to stay late.
